Airport Bomb Kills 11

NEW YORK (AP) — An explosion designed to "kill and maim" blasted a baggage area at La Guardia Airport into a mass of rubble Monday night, killing at least 11 persons and injuring about 75 others.

The airport was quickly evacuated and closed to all traffic as authorities received telephoned threats of other explosives hidden in the airport.

A search turned up no other bombs, but authorities said the airport would remain closed for at least 24 hours.

As workers searched the debris, there were reports of as many as 14 deaths, but police at the airport said they could not confirm more than 11.

Hospital spokesmen said about a dozen of the wounded suffered serious injuries.

The blast occurred at 6:30 p.m. in an area where Trans World Airlines arriving passengers were claiming their luggage.

Police officials said the source of the explosion was a bomb, traced later to a locker in the baggage claim area. They said they had virtually ruled out the possibility that it had come into the building concealed in luggage from an airplane.

Fire Commissioner John O'Hagan told a news conference, "This was done by someone who knew about explosives. It was no amateur. It's apparent that it was intended to kill and maim."

Police officials said they began looking for two men in their late teens or early 20s after witnesses said two men fitting that description had run from the building minutes before the blast.

A number of news organizations, including The Associated Press, received telephone calls claiming that the Palestinian Liberation Organization was responsible for the blast, but police discounted these reports.

"We'll investigate it, but at this point I wouldn't put much stock in it," one police source said. Zuhdi Tervi, a PLO observer to the United Nations, said later that the PLO "categorically denies any involvement in the criminal act."

Police said the explosion had a force equivalent to 20 to 25 sticks of dynamite, but they said the exact substance had not been identified. Heavy glass windows were shattered and blown hundreds of feet, and the ceiling in the vicinity of the explosion fell to the floor in a mass of twisted wires and rubble.

Destruction Amazing

Mayor Abraham Beame, who joined O'Hagan and at the scene, blamed the blast on "those maniacs," adding, "It's a despicable act, and we will hunt them down."

Nine of the victims were pronounced dead at the scene, and two others were dead at a Queens hospital.

The nine blanket-covered bodies at the airport, five men and four women, were moved to an area occupied by National Airlines as police and medical examiners began the task of trying to identify them.

At LaGuardia, thousands of terrified airline passengers clutching their baggage were moved away from the explosion area, gate 22, near the Delta Air Lines section.

Planes already loaded with passengers were ordered to take off, while other planes were towed away from the terminal.

As the bomb squad went into the American Airlines area, where the second explosion was threatened, a dog was sent in to sniff out explosives.

Campaign Contribution Ceiling Proposed In Act

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of five articles in a series by The Star's political writer.)

By DON WALTON

Star Staff Writer

The proposed Nebraska Political Reform Act of 1976 would limit the amount of individual election campaign contributions, but not the amount of campaign expenditures.

More detailed disclosure by contributors would also be mandated.

Certain persons and groups who are able to contribute large amounts to campaigns have gained a disproportionate influence over elected officials," the proposed law states in its preamble.

"In order to permit all citizens, regardless of wealth, to have an equal access to elected officials in Nebraska, and in order to permit citizens to vote knowledgeably, the law should require that the identity of financial backers be disclosed and should set limits on the size of individual contributions."

Limit Of $400

The proposed new law would impose a $400 limit (per election) on individual contributions to candidates for all elective statewide offices, including governor.

Individual contributions to candidates for the Legislature or statewide elective commissions or boards would be limited to $250.

State political party committees could contribute up to $20,000 to gubernatorial candidates or aspirants for other statewide offices.

Congressional district or county party committees could contribute up to $2,800 to candidates for statewide offices, or up to $3,750 to legislative candidates whose districts are wholly or partly in that district or county.

Up To $10,000

A gubernatorial candidate and his immediate family could provide up to $10,000 to his own campaign.

A $5,000 ceiling would be set for a candidate and his immediate family in campaigns for other statewide offices. The limit for candidates for state senator or area boards or commissions would be $3,000.

A new Fair Political Practices Commission would recommend changes in these limits to the Legislature every other year to match alterations in the cost of living.

Direct campaign contributions from banks, corporations, labor organizations or trade associations would be prohibited.

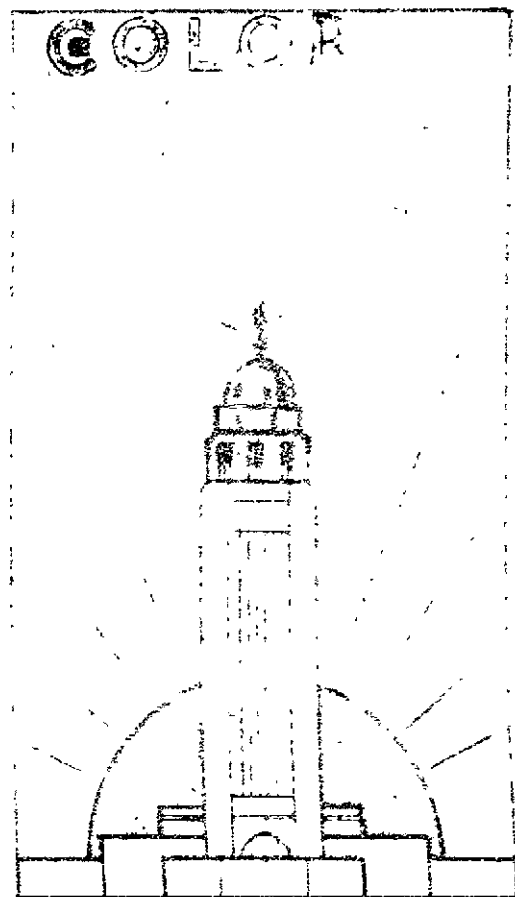

But voluntary contributions from employees or members could be channeled through a company or union political education committee. The limit for any statewide candidate would be $2,800 per election.

Contributors Listed

Individuals who contribute more than $15 to a candidate would be listed by name and address in that candidate's campaign finance reports.

Anyone who contributed more than $100 would also be required to list his or her occupation, employer and place of business.

Individuals who contribute more than $50 to a political party would be listed by name and address. Occupation, employer and place of business would be required of any contributor who gave more than $100.

Single Bank Account

All campaign contributions and expenditures would be funneled through a single bank account.

Detailed campaign finance reports would need to be filed for public disclosure at least 30 days before the election, 14 days before the election and not later than 38 days following the election.

Anonymous contributions could not be accepted, but would be handed over to a tax-exempt charitable organization.

No cash contributions or expenditures of more than $20 could be made or accepted, except for single expenditures of up to $35 from a petty cash fund.

Any unexpended campaign funds would need to be transferred to another candidate's committee or a political party committee, to a tax-exempt charitable institution or returned to the contributors.

Lower Limit

Candidate committees are relieved from virtually all filing requirements if they receive or spend $500 or less.

Exempted from the act would be candidates for county office in counties of less than 9,000 population, candidates for judge in county judicial districts of less than 9,000, candidates for municipal office or school boards in cities or districts of less than 5,000 and candidates for delegate or alternate delegate to national party conventions.

The campaign finance law would take effect on Jan. 1, 1978.

Ford Dinner Guests Asked For $1,000

not give $1,000," he told reporters in response to extended questioning.

An administration official later disclosed that Mrs. Gramshammer was told to send out her pledge cards after the dinner by a member of the President Ford Committee.

Instead, she sent out the pledges in the same mail that she sent her invitations. "She didn't understand," said the official.

He described Mrs. Gramshammer as "an overenthusiastic fund raiser who had to be given some guidelines."

Nessen said all contributions were sent to the President Ford Committee in Washington rather than to Mrs. Gramshammer and she not only was paying for the entire dinner herself but she also did not know who contributed.

"My understanding is that nobody is being charged to go to the dinner," he said, adding that at fund-raising dinner, a contribution is required and tickets are sold.

When asked if he knew about the fund-raising dinner, Ford said, "I don't know anything about it. But I have a lot of friends here."

Mrs. Gramshammer said she gave similar dinners for the Fords the past four years, summer and winter. "The only difference is more people are invited because we have more room now" — the dinner was in Sheila's restaurant, owned by the Gramshammers.

"I help with my services but it has nothing to do with tonight," she said. "People can give what they want. It is not my knowledge what they sent to Washington. That is up to them. Tonight is just my dinner."

She said those on the guest list were "friends of mine who I wanted to give the opportunity to meet the President."

"It would change the nature of the trip and would change the financing of the trip" if Ford went to an official fund-raising event in Vail, Nessen said, adding that if the dinner were a fundraiser, the Federal Election Commission would order part of the trip be paid for by Ford's campaign committee.

Mrs. Gramshammer's husband Pepi owns one of Vail's fanciest restaurants and has other business interests.

Mayor, Council Agree On LES Nominations

By NANCY HICKS

Star Staff Writer

After almost a dozen straw votes the City Council and mayor finally compromised on two old faces and two new faces for the Lincoln Electric System (LES) administrative board appointments.

The new faces, to be submitted by Mayor Helen Bosalski for council approval next Monday, will be Leo DeMars, an engineer recently retired from ABC Electric Co., and Keith N. Newhouse, a University of Nebraska-Lincoln mechanical engineering professor.

The old faces to be reappointed for second four-year terms are Vince Goeres and Larry Connealy.

Some of the new names suggested by councilwoman Sue Bailey prompted Bob Sikyta to jump in with, "I'm probably going to commit political suicide ... but I'm tired of being surrounded by college professors, college wives and League of Women Voters."

"They're all good people, but I'll be damned. Let's get somebody on who's the typical person, the typical housewife."

Visibly angered, Mayor Bosalski, both a university wife and formerly active in the League of Women Voters, replied, "I wish you'd go back and check the record ... I wish you'd prove what you say."

And Mrs. Bailey said her research of city boards and committees showed no overbalance of either university people or league members. In fact architects have a far greater representation than their numbers warrant, she pointed out.

The almost two-hour luncheon meeting was a series of stalemates then compromises as the seven council members and the mayor tried to come up with names for the LES board that they would all vote for next week.

The mayor and three council members — Mrs. Bailey, Bob Jeambey and John Robinson — all were pushing for some new faces on the LES board.

The seeming unity of the LES board is its "basic weakness," said Mrs. Bailey. Opposing view points on controversial topics should have been examined at the board level, she said.

And Jeambey said that the board should have some members who "take initiative ... who act in a gadfly role."

"Do you measure a board by its successes or by its arguments?" countered Steve Cook.

Cook, Sikyta, Dick Baker and Max Denney consistently voted for veteran board members and those with business or engineering backgrounds, while the three other council members supported younger candidates and some who had been vocally opposed to LES getting involved in nuclear power.

One veteran board member, Neal Tyner, who served on the Power Advisory Board, the forerunner of the LES board, since 1966, will not be reappointed.

Under a new city law passed Dec. 22, the mayor will nominate the four men by executive order, then the council must confirm by a majority vote.

If a name fails to get majority support, the council can appoint another person with five votes.

In addition to the normal expiration of three terms on the LES board in December, the City Council declared the seat of James Bradley vacant during its Monday night meeting.

Bradley, who has served on the board since 1971, is not a resident of Lincoln and, therefore is ineligible to be on the board according to the city law.

Postage Rises Wednesday

Washington (UPI) — The U.S. Court of Appeals Monday lifted a lower court injunction and allowed a postal rate increase, including a three cent raise on first class mail to 13 cents, which the Postal Service announced would go into effect Wednesday.

The three-judge panel acted in a brief order 90 minutes after hearing arguments by the Postal Service that the rate increase was needed to offset growing deficits.

The Postal Service announced later that the raise would take effect at 12:01 local time Wednesday.

A spokesman indicated that a first class letter postmarked after that time could be returned to the sender if it carried less than 13 cents postage.

The Court of Appeals lifted an injunction issued by District Judge John J. Sirica which had delayed higher rates scheduled to begin last Sunday.

Council Rings In Year By Boosting LES Rates

By LYNN ZERSCHLING

Star Staff Writer

The City Council brought in the New Year by boosting Lincoln Electric System rates Monday night.

The lawmakers unanimously approved the rate increases despite a concerted attempt by some 200 citizens to block any immediate action on electric rates.

A coalition of some 20 Lincoln church, neighborhood and civic groups, called Organization for a Lincoln Alliance, urged the council to hold two more hearings on the rate matter.

The people "haven't been given the facts," asserted alliance spokesman Phillip Cole. "Lincolmites don't like to be 'badgered into accepting these increases on short notice because of LES shortsightedness,'" Cole stated.

The organization asked the lawmakers to postpone rate action one month. An attempt to delay its rate decision for two more weeks failed on a 4-3 vote. Councilmen Dick Baker, Steve Cook, Max Denney and Bob Sikyta blocked an attempt by council members Sue Bailey, Bob Jeambey and John Robinson to give citizens that extra time.

Mrs. Bailey said she believed she had all the information she needed to vote on the LES request, but wanted to give citizens additional time.

The council unanimously approved the LES rate increases which will boost residential bills an average of 29.8%, commercial bills an average of 19.8% and industrial bills an average of 25.9%.

Council members indicated they didn't feel they had much choice in boosting electric rates.

The lawmakers noted that about 14% of the rate increase is directly attributed to an increase in wholesale power costs. The Nebraska Public Power District will boost its rates by 68% Jan. 1.

The lawmakers agreed that additional revenues are needed to give Lincoln the financial solidarity needed to float revenue bonds.

LES plans to sell $54 million in revenue bonds in March. Some $42 million will be used to pay for projects and equipment already built or under construction. The other $12 million will help pay Lincoln's initial share in the cost to build a coal-fired plant in Wyoming.

LES staff and board members, which recommended the rate boost, have argued that any delay in approval of the new rates would severely jeopardize Lincoln's chances of selling those bonds on the New York bond market.

Additionally, LES officials argued that LES would be out of money without the increased revenues generated by the rate hikes.

While some lawmakers had questions on the rates and how they were determined, alliance president Ery Goldenstein said the citizens have even more questions.

"We want a clear, understandable explanation," he said. "All we've gotten here is gobblegook."

And Councilman Bob Jeambey wasn't too pleased with the LES arguments, either.

Jeambey was highly critical of LES for not giving him some information he said he had requested. He said LES's repeated concern over Lincoln's bond ratings and interest rates on those bonds would not be jeopardized by a two-week delay.

The LES argument to act on the rates Monday "is just more of this pressure tactic we've been getting from over there on 14th St.," where LES offices are located, he charged.

Councilman Steve Cook said he didn't like the rate hike any better than Jeambey, but wondered why Jeambey wasn't willing to accept "the experts at LES."

Ford Dinner Guests Asked For $1,000

Vail, Colo. (UPI) — President Ford took a last run down the slopes Monday before closing his ski vacation by attending a dinner in his honor hosted by his chief political fund-raiser in this posh resort.

Many of those invited were asked to give $1,000 to his 1976 campaign.

Press secretary Ron Nessen said a White House lawyer concluded that "this is not a fundraiser under the legal definition" and "the President would not go" if he saw anything wrong with the request for contributions.

But other presidential aides said Ford had tried to persuade Sheila Gramshammer, a friend and former Las Vegas showgirl, to drop her plans. They said Ford feared the dinner might be viewed as a political event while he was on a vacation and some might demand his campaign organization pay for part of his eight-day vacation.

Ford, planning to fly back to Washington Tuesday, was accompanied on his final day of skiing by Mrs. Gramshammer and other persons, including Billy Kidd, a former champion who teaches skiing at Steamboat Springs, Colo.

The dinner was in honor of the Fords, but First Lady Betty Ford had a fever and was not expected to attend.

Nessen said Mrs. Gramshammer invited 52 couples to Monday's dinner and she sent many of them a separate "pledge card" soliciting donations to Ford's campaign. He said 11 couples contributed $10,000 as of Dec. 23.

But Nessen said she sent more than 100 such cards to Vail residents and some people attending the dinner were not on the mailing list.

"Nobody is going tonight because they gave $1,000 and nobody not going is not because they did not give $1,000," he told reporters in response to extended questioning.

An administration official later disclosed that Mrs. Gramshammer was told to send out her pledge cards after the dinner by a member of the President Ford Committee.

Instead, she sent out the pledges in the same mail that she sent her invitations. "She didn't understand," said the official.

He described Mrs. Gramshammer as "an overenthusiastic fund raiser who had to be given some guidelines."

Council Rings In Year By Boosting LES Rates

Reagan's Record Shows Some Campaign Statements Overblown

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The record of Ronald Reagan the governor supports some of the claims of Ronald Reagan the candidate, but it also shows that some of his campaign statements are exaggerated.

As governor of California, Reagan, now seeking the Republican presidential nomination, waged verbal war against taxes, but he raised every major state tax during his eight-year administration.

Reagan also doubled state spending while governor. But most of that extra money went to local government, easing property tax rates.

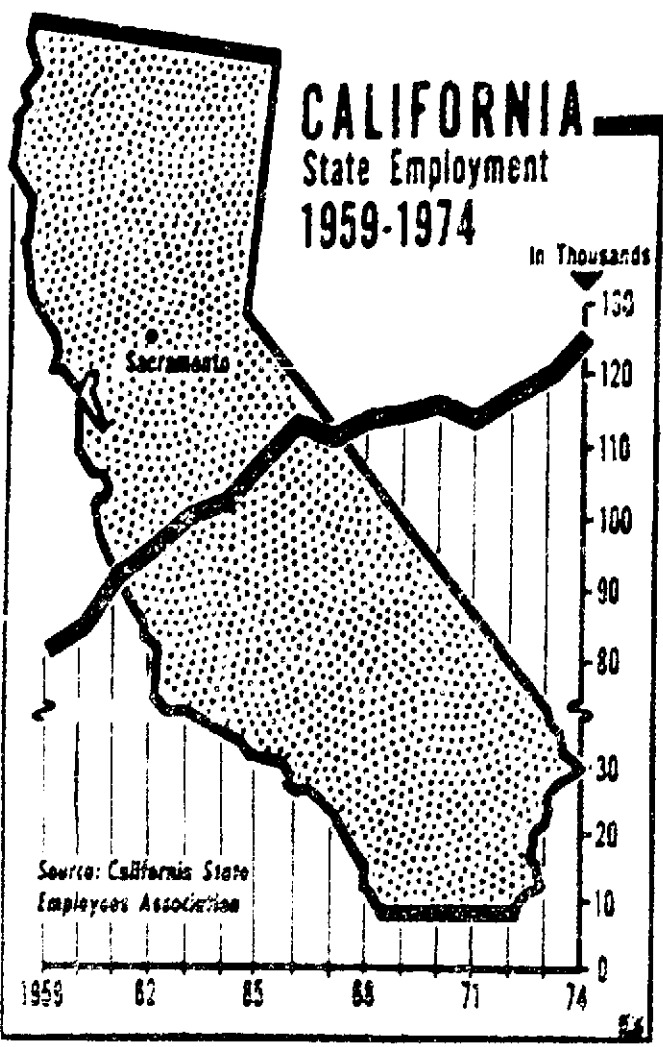

Reagan made "cut, squeeze and trim" his slogan in those years. In his campaign for the Republican nomination for president, Reagan now talks about doing the same thing at the federal level.

As governor, Reagan found that cutting and trimming were more difficult than anticipated. His first directive ordered each state agency to cut its budget by 10 per cent.

The next month, Reagan asked state employees to work without pay on Lincoln and Washington's birthdays to help the state cut expenses. About two per cent showed up Feb. 12, and the plan was abandoned before Washington's birthday.

Within another month, Reagan also abandoned the order for a 10 per cent cut in each state agency. He went before the legislature with a proposal for $1 billion-a-year increase in state sales, personal income and business taxes.

Comparing campaign speeches with actual accomplishments is difficult. The same statistics can be interpreted in many ways. Here is a look at some of Reagan's words and some of his actions.

stresses that he limited increases in the size of the state payroll. He did — although not by as much as he claims.

In campaign speeches, Reagan says that when he took over in 1967, "the payroll had been increasing between 5,000 and 7,000 employees each year for those preceding eight years."

When he left office, he says, there was "a statewide payroll that was virtually the same size as when we found it eight years before, even though the workload increases were as much as 66 per cent."

When Pat Brown took office in January, 1959, the total civil service work force, including part-time and temporary workers, was 80,932.

Eight years later, the work force was 114,403 — an increase of 33,471 or just under 4,200 persons per year.

When Reagan left office, the work force was 129,044 — an increase of 14,641 or about 1,830 persons a year.

Another Reagan campaign statement is in the area of welfare.

The former governor says that in 1967, "We were the welfare capital of the world. Sixteen per cent of the nation's welfare recipients were in California and the caseload was increasing 40,000 a month . . . We've reduced the welfare rolls by 400,000, increased the grants to the truly needy by 43 per cent . . ."

Comparing the total number of welfare recipients now and eight years ago is impossible because of the shift of aged, blind and disabled recipients from federal to state jurisdiction. Some clues are available, however, in figures from the Department of Benefit Payments on the caseload for Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

In 1959, when Brown took office, the caseload was 254,966. Eight years later, the caseload was 752,199. By March, 1971, when Reagan unveiled his welfare reform program, it had risen to 1,663,564, six and a half times what it was in 1959.

In July, 1974, the caseload was 1,311,915, a drop of 351,649 from its peak and almost equal to the 400,000 Reagan talks about in his speeches. By January 1975, when Reagan left office, the caseload had increased again slightly to 1,400,797.

A look at benefits shows that when Pat Brown took office, a mother with three children on an AFDC grant received $149 a month. In January 1967, the same family received $176 a month.

In September 1971, the grant was boosted to $261 a month — an increase of slightly more than the 43 per cent Reagan has cited. Further cost of living increases raised the grant to $311 by December 1974 and to $349 today.

For the general public, Reagan today talks of having "given back to the taxpayers $5.7 billion."

Some of the money came in the form of discounts on state income tax — although the basic rate was increased from 7 to 11 per cent for those in the top brackets. Most of the money given back was in the form of aid to local governments. That aid was used to cut annual property taxes by an average of $225 per home and to shift the tax burden from lower income homeowners to a more general base.

In other areas, Reagan's record as governor is not so conservative as his public statements. Nor does it support the challenge of liberal critics that he catered only to big business interests.

REAGAN . . . waged verbal war against taxes, but he raised them.

—He was generous to public education at all levels, despite his repeated criticisms of the University of California and his campaign promise to "clean up the mess at Berkeley."

—He reduced the inmate population in state prisons with a probation subsidy program that encouraged judges not to send nonviolent prisoners to state prison.

—He offered subsidies to local government to provide care for mental patients near their homes instead of sending them to state hospitals.

Looking back over the Reagan years in California, Jesse Unruh, a Democrat who fought hard against Reagan, summarized it this way:

"As a governor, I think he has been better than most Democrats would concede and not nearly as good as most Republicans and conservatives might like to think."

U.S. Airlifts Pumps To India Mine

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The United States was reported airlifting high-capacity pumps and technical experts to India on Monday to help drain an estimated 110 million gallons of water from a mine where about 372 miners were trapped and feared dead.

Minister of Mines Chandrajit Yadav said the Indian government requested American help through its embassy in Washington and efforts began immediately to fly the pumps and experts to the mine at Chasnala in northeastern India.

In Washington, Robert Barrett, head of the U. S. Mining

Enforcement and Safety Administration, said 10 pumps with a capacity of 2,500 gallons per minute would leave Monday from Midland, Tex.

He said three mine experts from his agency's Mine Emergency Operations Group and a fourth from Rowan Drilling in Midland would accompany the equipment, which also includes cables, pipes and other items.

However, there was virtually no hope that any of the miners had survived the flooding Saturday in the government-run mine 160 miles northwest of Calcutta in Bihar state. A nearby abandoned mine being used as the town reservoir collapsed sending its water into the mine.

"The only hope is that by some miracle some miners may have found some airpockets down there," said Yadav.

As of late Monday, no survivor or body had been brought from the deep, inundated shafts, and officials said none could be brought up until the mine was drained.

The government ordered an investigation of the disaster. Mining officials at the site said they suspected that an accumulation of gas may have caused an explosion that led to the collapse of the reservoir.

The 4,000 residents of the town of Chasnala, where almost every family was directly affected by the tragedy, held out little hope that even a speedy draining of the mine would produce any survivors.

Wives and families of the trapped men did not go to the mine to keep a vigil but stayed home and mourned — a sign they did not expect any survivors.

Just how fast the 1,200-foot shaft could be drained was a matter of dispute among engineers and mining officials.

Horse Diaper Law Void

Charleston, S.C. (UPI) — Municipal Judge Hugo M. Spitz, saying God didn't design a horse to wear diapers, dismissed charges Monday against a carriage operator accused of violating an ordinance requiring diapers on horses.

In dismissing the charges against David Fuller, Spitz ruled the city ordinance violated state laws preventing cruelty to animals and specifically prohibiting cruelty to horses. He said there is no way a diaper can be attached to a horse without chafing the animal.

The city council approved the diaper ordinance, effective Dec. 1, following complaints that horse-drawn carriage tours through historic sections of the city left manure in the streets which created odor and health problems. The ordinance required the carriage owners to diaper their horses or face arrest and a fine.

Fuller, operator of the Charleston Carriage Co., was arrested shortly after the ordinance went into effect. He vowed to go to jail rather than diaper his horses and called the ordinance an insult to both the horses and their owners.

Gandhi Power Stronger

New Delhi — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's political position appears to have been strengthened by two moves taken by leaders of the Indian government, who announced that they would use their emergency powers to postpone for a year the parliamentary elections that were to have been held early in 1976, and that they propose to extend the six-month-old state of emergency until "the dangers of internal and external subversion have been fully surmounted." The announcement followed a meeting of the Congress Party.

Wounded Knee Report Shocks Indian

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — A national coordinator of the American Indian Movement said Monday the U.S. Army is using a "hypocritical, false report" to try to justify the deaths of 146 Sioux Indian men, women and children at Wounded Knee, S.D., 85 years ago.

"Frankly, I was shocked and struck by disbelief at the Army report that said the Wounded Knee incident in 1890 was not a massacre," Vernon Bellecourt said.

The Army report released Monday concluded that it is unfair and inaccurate to describe the incident on the Pine Ridge Reservation as a massacre.

Historians view Wounded Knee as the last fighting of the long Indian wars of the 19th century. It culminated efforts by the Army to force Indians, including a group led by a chief named Big Foot, to return to the reservation.

The study said cavalrymen did not engage in "deliberate, intentional shooting of helpless persons" and it added, "Contrary to popular conception of the Wounded Knee episode, the civilian authorities and the Army showed great ly 150 Indians killed and at least 33 Indians injured at Wounded Knee $3,000 per family. The report opposed the payments.

"I just can't believe that the Army would try 85 years later to stop those payments," said Bellecourt, reached at national AIM headquarters in Mahanomen, Minn.

"What would be wrong with an attempt to rectify the injustices done in 1890, particularly during this Bicentennial year?"

Tobey Eagle Bull, secretary of the Oglala Sioux Tribe at Pine Ridge, S.D., called the study "a typical Army report."

"They're not going to take the blame for anything," he said.

Vine Deloria Sr., a Sioux clergyman in Pierre, S.D., said he had talked with several people who were at the Wounded Knee clash.

"One thing is sure. It was a massacre, pure and simple. It's fantastic to try to whitewash it now," he said.

"If the Army was acting so compassionately, why didn't they bury the dead in individual graves instead of digging a big ditch and putting them all in one?"

Robert Lee, an Indian historian living in Sturgis, S.D., also called the report a whitewash.

The study shouldn't have been done by the Army at all, he said. "If it were to be done, an independent group should have done it."

The fact that 18 Medals of Honor were given out after the fight showed that the Army was trying to create the impression of a great battle."

Robert P. Burnette, tribal chairman of the Rosebud, S.D., Sioux Indian tribe, who announced his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination Monday, said he will bring a witness to the Judiciary Committee's hearings Jan. 20 who was at Wounded Knee in 1890.

"The witnesses can testify that those people were surrounded and had been stripped of their weapons," said Burnette, author of a book called "The Road to Wounded Knee."

"Chief Big Foot almost died of pneumonia the night before and was lying frozen in his tepee when shot by galling guns," Burnette said in Washington, D.C. "One of the young fellows in a gesture of defiance threw some dirt into the air. That was when the shots were fired . . . when the galling guns opened up and the Army killed a lot of their own men."

The Army study contends that it was an Indian who fired the first shot of the battle. It didn't matter who shot first, Abourezk said. "The Army had chased the Indians all across the state, had them surrounded and was threatening them."

He said his bill is an effort to provide a symbolic award to heirs of those killed.

Of the Army's contention that the award of money would set a precedent for claims by heirs of Indians killed in other battles by the Army, Abourezk said, "Why deny justice here just because it might create a future precedent?"

Reagan's Record Shows Some Campaign Statements Overblown

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The record of Ronald Reagan the governor supports some of the claims of Ronald Reagan the candidate, but it also shows that some of his campaign statements are exaggerated.

As governor of California, Reagan, now seeking the Republican presidential nomination, waged verbal war against taxes, but he raised every major state tax during his eight-year administration.

Reagan also doubled state spending while governor. But most of that extra money went to local government, easing property tax rates.

Reagan made "cut, squeeze and trim" his slogan in those years. In his campaign for the Republican nomination for president, Reagan now talks about doing the same thing at the federal level.

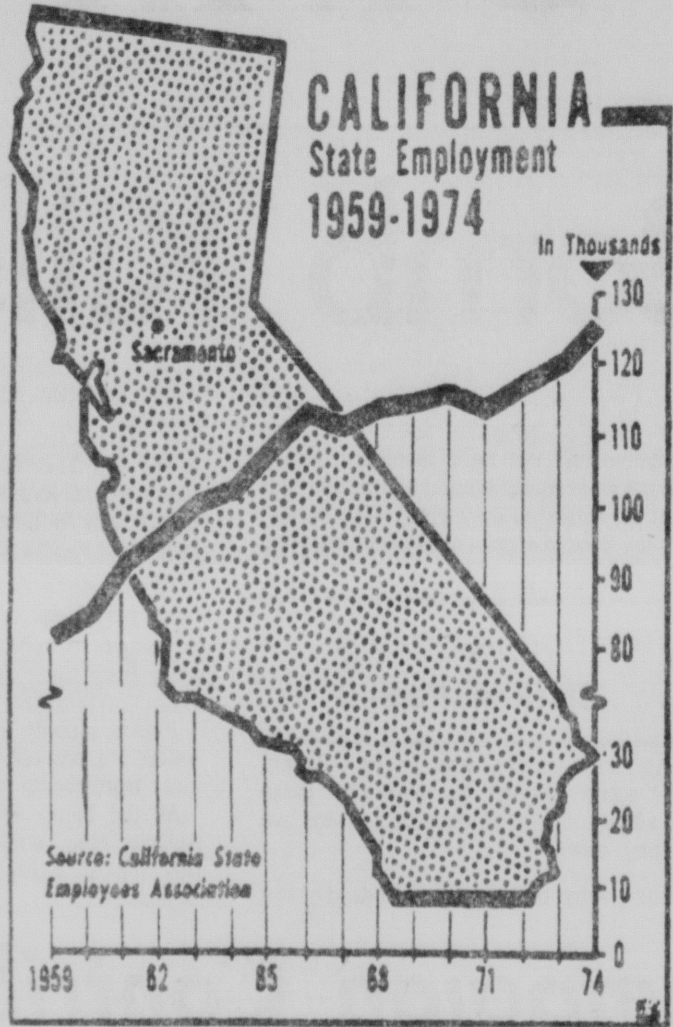

As governor, Reagan found that cutting and trimming were more difficult than anticipated.

His first directive ordered each state agency to cut its budget by 10 per cent.

The next month, Reagan asked state employees to work without pay on Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays to help the state cut expenses. About two per cent showed up Feb. 12, and the plan was abandoned before Washington's birthday.

Within another month, Reagan also abandoned the order for a 10 per cent cut in each state agency. He went before the legislature with a proposal for $1 billion-a-year increase in state sales, personal income and business taxes.

Comparing campaign speeches with actual accomplishments is difficult. The same statistics can be interpreted in many ways. Here is a look at some of Reagan's words and some of his actions.

STATE PAYROLL . . . chart shows rise.

"I inherited a government that had been a little brother to big brother in Washington for eight years," Reagan says in his campaign speeches.

"It was virtually insolvent — on the verge of bankruptcy, spending $1.5 billion a day more than it was taking in . . . I didn't know if I was elected governor or appointed receiver."

"Jan. 6, we turned over the reins of government to a new administration . . . They were handed a $500 million surplus."

Democratic Gov. Edmund G. "Pat" Brown, father of the current governor, left Reagan a $194 million carryover deficit and a $35 million cash balance.

His operating budget for the next year — 1967-68 — had a projected deficit of $526 million.

When Reagan handed over the state government to the Edmund Brown Jr. there was a $566 million surplus from funds built up in 1972 and 1973 and a 1974-75 operating budget deficit of $350 million.

Reagan the candidate also stresses that he limited increases in the size of the state payroll. He did — although not by as much as he claims.

In campaign speeches, Reagan says that when he took over in 1967, "the payroll had been increasing between 5,000 and 7,000 employees each year for those preceding eight years."

When he left office, he says, there was "a statewide payroll that was virtually the same size as when we found it eight years before, even though the workload increases were as much as 66 per cent."

When Pat Brown took office in January, 1959, the total civil service work force, including part-time and temporary workers, was 80,932.

Eight years later, the work force was 114,403 — an increase of 33,471 or just under 4,200 persons per year.

When Reagan left office, the work force was 129,044 — an increase of 14,641 or about 1,830 persons a year.

Another Reagan campaign statement is in the area of welfare.

The former governor says that in 1967, "We were the welfare capital of the world. Sixteen per cent of the nation's welfare recipients were in California and the caseload was increasing 40-000 a month . . . We've reduced the welfare rolls by 400,000, increased the grants to the truly needy by 43 per cent . . ."

Comparing the total number of welfare recipients now and eight years ago is impossible because of the shift of aged, blind and disabled recipients from federal to state jurisdiction. Some clues are available, however, in figures from the Department of Benefit Payments on the caseload for Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

In 1959, when Brown took office, the caseload was 254,966. Eight years later, the caseload was 752,199. By March, 1971, when Reagan unveiled his welfare reform program, it had risen to 1,663,564, six and a half times what it was in 1959.

restraint and compassion in the events leading up to the encounter."

The report, based on a study by Army historians of official records and private publications, was given to the Senate Judiciary Committee. The committee is studying a bill by Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., giving to the descendants of the near ly 150 Indians killed and at least 33 Indians injured at Wounded Knee $3,000 per family. The report opposed the payments.

Judge Dismisses Motions To Move Trial, Bar Press

North Platte (AP) — Lincoln County District Court Judge Hugh Stuart Monday denied motions to move the trial of Erwin Charles Stimants outside Lincoln County, and to bar the press and public from pre-trial hearings involving Stimants.

Members of the media and public were ordered to leave the courtroom during what court observers believed to be a hearing to suppress evidence. Stuart later termed the reported purpose of the closed-door hearing "speculation," but refused to comment further.

The ruling will have no effect on a court-imposed "gag order" prohibiting coverage of certain aspects of the case, Stuart said.

Jury selection is to begin Jan. 5 in Lincoln County District Court. Stimants is charged with six counts of first-degree murder in the Oct. 18 deaths of the Henry Kellie family of Sutherland.

In a hearing on motions filed by the public defender's office on Stimants' behalf, the state argued that even though there was a great deal of pre-trial publicity, there was no evidence that an objective jury could not be selected.

Stuart granted a motion that the questioning of prospective jurors be restricted so that no more than four jurors are present during questioning. The remaining members of the jury will be sequestered from others being questioned.

He also granted a motion that the jury be sequestered to the length of the trial.

Stuart denied a request by Alan Peterson, a Lincoln attorney representing a Nebraska media coalition, to speak on behalf of his clients, noting a state Supreme Court ruling says the media has no legal standing to intervene as a third party in the case.

In denying defense attorney Leonard Vyhnaek's motion for closed pre-trial hearings, Stuart said his ruling did not prevent the public defender's office from refiling a motion on the matter.

Vyhnaek said he would refile the motion.

Stuart also said he found "nothing (in documents presented in support of the motion) that would prejudice the defendant from having a fair trial."

The documents referred to were four motions filed by Vyhnaek and two affidavits filed with the motions. The affidavits were defense-secured statements from Lincoln County residents concerning publicity surrounding the Kellie murders.

Stuart said, however, that the affidavits contained information which might be prejudicial to the defendant if quoted by the news media. He said the news media "is admonished" to follow certain guidelines concerning statements made by the defendant or opinions as to his guilt or innocence.

Deputy County Atty. Marvin Holscher did not object to the motion to close pre-trial proceedings, but did oppose the change of venue motion. Holscher said "publicity in itself does not automatically mean that the defendant won't receive a fair trial."

Holscher said the "real test" will come when the potential jurors are questioned. Even then, he argued, Nebraska statutes say a person's knowledge of a case "is not controlling even if the potential juror has formed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence" of the accused.

Blast Scene Said Bloody Nightmare

The New York Times

New York — The bomb that ripped into the TWA baggage claim area at LaGuardia Airport Monday night, turning a scene of holiday travel into a bloody nightmare, left witnesses talking with horror and amazement of the human destruction they had seen.

Stewart Rubin, 25, a ground service employee, was on the runway oiling a TWA jetliner for departure when he heard the blast and started running for the building.

"When I got inside, we were finding hands and feet all over," Rubin said. "There were busted bodies ... it was chaos ... dead bodies lying all over the place. It was unreal."

Another employee told of finding a severed head lying on the sidewalk in front of the arrivals building, and then a foot, and then a woman whose chest had been blown apart.

Confusion Inside

Inside, there was confusion, with travelers left wondering what had happened once the deafening roar shook the building and orders to evacuate were announced.

Bells were ringing like in a school fire drill," said Richard Siemers, who had seen off his daughter, son-in-law and grandchild, on a flight bound for Tulsa, Okla., just five minutes before the blast. "They told us to evacuate the building, but they didn't tell you where to go or what to do."

Walking toward the parking lot, Siemers added, he saw "the most heart-sickening thing I ever saw in my life. Bodies were all over ... glass ... water pouring into the street ... people taking the injured to taxicabs ... a man on crutches running around without a coat ... puddles of blood on the island between the building and the parking lot."

'Everyone In Shock'

There was no screaming, Siemers said. "It seemed like everyone was in shock. The whole thing was just a complete wreck, with mobs of people just standing around. You can't believe it till you see something like this."

Dozens of emergency vehicles began arriving at the complex, parking at crazy angles in the illuminated roadways. The dead were lined up, with blankets thrown over some of them and plastic tarpaulins pulled around those most badly mutilated.

Many of the injuries were caused by the plate glass windows — 30 feet high along the frontage of 125 yards — that had been blown out and lay shattered across the roadways.

Like Dante's Inferno

"The scene was out of Dante's Inferno," said Edwin M. Schwenk, The Suffolk County Republican chairman stepped off a plane from South Carolina where he had gone on a business trip, at about 6:25 p.m., in time to hear the explosion that "rocked everything in sight."

People were staggering outside the building "in a daze," Schwenk said, adding that he and a police officer enlisted the help of taxi drivers to get some of the bleeding to hospitals. "It was a total and complete disaster — the like of which I've never seen before."

Hundreds of people huddled in groups around the perimeters of the area.

Frank Sullivan, a fireman, said he "never saw so much blood and so many injured," and Richard J. McAllan, a paramedic from Jacobi Hospital, told of one woman who ran from ambulance to ambulance, looking for a relative.

Hanna Marlene, waiting at the gate for a flight to Columbus, Ohio, told of the "enormous explosion, a flash of light, bright, and a rumbling," and of seeing a "security girl at the checkout counter go skidding down the counter — 200 feet or so."

Japan Business Failures Total 11,713 Cases

Tokyo (AP) — Japan's business failures in 1975 totaled 11,713 cases with combined liabilities of $6.979 billion, a record high in both volume and value, a major Japanese credit research center said.

The agency said bankruptcies so far in December totaled 602 with combined liabilities of $345 million.

The biggest postwar bankruptcy occurred in August when Johjin Ltd., a textile-real estate company, became insolvent with debts of $500 million.

Comprehensive Plan Hits Roadblock

By LYNN ZERSCHLING

City Council members' efforts to speed up the Comprehensive Plan may have run into a roadblock in the form of the county road plan.

County Engineer Marv Nuernberger told a council committee Monday that no work has been done on preparing a county transportation plan. Nuernberger predicted that it may be impossible to finish the Comprehensive Plan by June 30, if the county road plan is to be done.

Planning Director Doug Brogden reported that under a contract with the city's consultants, work on such a plan would be done.

However, Traffic Engineer Bob Holsinger confirmed that no work on the county road plan has been undertaken by the Technical Committee, which is working on a city street plan. Holsinger noted that the Technical Committee, composed of transportation planners from various governmental agencies, has only been charged with working on that city plan.

Members of the Technical Committee said they could work on a county plan also, if directed to do so by the Officials Committee, the group to which the Technical Committee reports.

City Councilman Bob Sikyta asked Officials Committee

Chairwoman Jan Gauger to review that matter.

Sikyta, along with several other councilmen, has been critical of planning efforts and wants the Comprehensive Plan to be completed.

The plan should have been finished in October, but several decisions by the council on street widening delayed completion of the transportation plan.

City Atty. Charles Humble reported that the city's consultants, Barton-Aschman, have said they can resume work on the plan if several things are completed.

The major stumbling block is the transportation plan. Barton-Aschman also needs, Humble said, a decision on how the council, mayor, County Board and Planning Commission intend to make decisions on approving various aspects of the Comprehensive Plan.

Barton-Aschman officials indicated they didn't think the plan could be completed by June 30, a date set last week by the City Council. Humble said the consultants believe it will take another seven or eight months to finish the Comprehensive Plan. Sikyta will hold another committee meeting Friday to discuss the planning schedule. Council members Sue Bailey and Steve Cook also serve on that committee.

Denney Didn't Intend 11 More Licenses

City Councilman Max Denney said Monday it's not his intent to add 11 new liquor license holders in the city.

The net effect of his proposal to change the liquor license system would add about 11 new licenses.

Denney said he intends to change his plan, which will be reviewed at a Jan. 19 council meeting, so that only a few new licenses would be granted initially.

"I'm not sure if I want any more licenses," Denney said, saying he thought the maximum of new licenses granted should be three or four.

Denney said it was his intent

to set up some kind of logical system for determining how licenses are increased.

Currently the city has a maximum of 135 licenses.

Under Denney's proposal, a license would be granted for every 1,000 Lincolniters for the first 100,000 residents. One license then would be granted for every 1,500 people. Using that formula and an estimated population of 170,000, 146 licenses would be allowed in the city, or 11 more than are permitted.

Denney told fellow lawmakers he'll probably change his formula so that so many new licenses would not be granted.

In other business the council approved the mayor's appointment of Doris Collins to the Lincoln Housing Authority to fill the unexpired term of Trego McWilliams. The term ends in July 1978.

The council also:

Ordinances, Third Reading — Delayed action on application of Countryside Mobile Homes of Lincoln for change of zone from A-2 Single Family to H-2 Hwy. Commercial near West Q and N.W. 24th.

— Amended municipal code sections relating to administrative amendments and relating to adjustment of front yard requirements in zoning ordinance.

— Created sidewalk improvement district in scattered areas of city from Air Park West to east Lincoln.

— Vacated 40th from north line of Colfax to Burlington-Quincy railroad.

Resolutions and Public Hearings — Amended interlocal agreement between city and county providing for city enforcement of county construction codes.

— Rescinded resolution which allocated revenue sharing funds for purpose of converting building at 2440 St. Mary's Ave. into use as location for health and social services.

Ordinances, First Reading — Creating sanitary sewer district in 40th from Cornhusker Hwy. north 450 feet.

— Creating paving district in 45th lying between north curb line of Greenwood and south line of Knox.

— Amending ordinance to establish official grades of certain streets in North Park Sub.

— Accepting plat Lincolnshire Estates 5th Add. located near St. James Rd. and N. Hampton Rd.

— Changing city code relating to pay schedule of keypunch operator trainee, systems programmer, systems analyst-programmer, correctional officer, wastewater sample collector and laboratory chemist-WPC.

Six Children Die In Fire

MONTREAL (AP) — Fire swept through a three-story brick tenement in the Point St. Charles district Monday, killing six children — all members of the same family — and injuring a woman and another youngster, police reported.

A spokesman at Montreal Children's Hospital said the six, whose ages ranged from 3 to 14, were dead on arrival at the emergency room there. The injured woman and child were taken to another hospital.

Police began an investigation to determine the cause of the blaze.

Former Pierce High Principal Is Dead At 85

Services will be 10 a.m. Wednesday, at Lincoln Memorial Funeral Home for Mary Keech Hartley, 85, of 3400 No. 14th, who died Monday.

Mrs. Hartley was formerly principal at Pierce High School, assistant principal at Seward, superintendent of schools at Milford from 1921 to 1923 and former assistant registrar at the University of Nebraska.

She was a retired Chicago teacher and a member of St. Luke's United Methodist Church.

Mrs. Hartley is survived by her stepdaughter, Mrs. Charles (Blythe) Hurd, of Habenfield, N.J.; a foster son, Lester Keech, of Lincoln; foster daughter, Mrs. Lyle (Mary Ellen) Rice, of Lincoln; brother, Harold R. Keech, of Lincoln; nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Big Coal-Fired Electric Plant Runs In Iowa

Sioux City, Iowa (UPI) — A $116 million electric generating unit, the largest coal-fired facility now operating in Iowa, has begun commercial operations at the George Neal Power Plant here, officials of the Iowa Power and Light Co. announced Monday.

The 500,000 kilowatt facility will burn low sulfur Wyoming coal and when operating at full capacity, will convert approximately 6,400 tons of coal into electric energy each day, officials said.

Air quality control equipment is designed to remove 99.6% of the fly ash and soot after the coal is burned, said officials.

Judge Dismisses Motions To Move Trial, Bar Press

North Platte (AP) — Lincoln County District Court Judge Hugh Stuart Monday denied motions to move the trial of Erwin Charles Stimants outside Lincoln County, and to bar the press and public from pre-trial hearings involving Stimants.

Members of the media and public were ordered to leave the courtroom during what court observers believed to be a hearing to suppress evidence. Stuart later termed the reported purpose of the closed-door hearing "speculation," but refused to comment further.

The ruling will have no effect on a court-imposed "gag order" prohibiting coverage of certain aspects of the case, Stuart said.

Jury selection is to begin Jan. 5 in Lincoln County District Court. Stimants is charged with six counts of first-degree murder in the Oct. 18 deaths of the Henry Kellie family of Sutherland.

In a hearing on motions filed by the public defender's office on Stimants' behalf, the state argued that even though there was a great deal of pre-trial publicity, there was no evidence that an objective jury could not be selected.

Stuart granted a motion that the questioning of prospective jurors be restricted so that no more than four jurors are present during questioning. The remaining members of the jury will be sequestered from others being questioned.

He also granted a motion that the jury be sequestered for the length of the trial.

Stuart denied a request by Alan Peterson, a Lincoln attorney representing a Nebraska media coalition, to speak on behalf of his clients, noting a state Supreme Court ruling says the media has no legal standing to intervene as a third party in the case.

In denying defense attorney Leonard Vyhnales's motion for closed pre-trial hearings, Stuart said his ruling did not prevent the public defender's office from refiling a motion on the matter.

Vyhnales said he would refile the motion.

Stuart also said he found "nothing (in documents presented in support of the motion) that would prejudice the defendant from having a fair trial."

The documents referred to were four motions filed by Vyhnales and two affidavits filed with the motions. The affidavits were defense-secured statements from Lincoln County residents concerning publicity surrounding the Kellie murders.

Stuart said, however, that the affidavits contained information which might be prejudicial to the defendant if quoted by the news media. He said the news media "is admonished" to follow certain guidelines concerning statements made by the defendant or opinions as to his guilt or innocence.

Deputy County Atty. Marvin Holscher did not object to the motion to close pre-trial proceedings, but did oppose the change of venue motion. Holscher said "publicity in itself does not automatically mean that the defendant won't receive a fair trial."

Holscher said the "real test" will come when the potential jurors are questioned. Even then, he argued, Nebraska statutes say a person's knowledge of a case "is not controlling even if the potential juror has formed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence" of the accused.

Blast Scene Said Bloody Nightmare

©The New York Times

New York — The bomb that ripped into the TWA baggage claim area at LaGuardia Airport Monday night, turning a scene of holiday travel into a bloody nightmare, left witnesses talking with horror and amazement of the human destruction they had seen.

Stewart Rubin, 25, a ground service employee, was on the runway oiling a TWA jetliner for departure when he heard the blast and started running for the building.

"When I got inside, we were finding hands and feet all over," Rubin said. "There were busted bodies . . . it was chaos . . . dead bodies lying all over the place. It was unreal."

Another employee told of finding a severed head lying on the sidewalk in front of the arrivals building, and then a foot, and then a woman whose chest had been blown apart.

Confusion Inside

Inside, there was confusion, with travelers left wondering what had happened once the deafening roar shook the building and orders to evacuate were announced.

"Bells were ringing like in a school fire drill," said Richard Siemers, who had seen off his daughter, son-in-law and grandchild, on a flight bound for Tulsa, Okla., just five minutes before the blast. "They told us to evacuate the building, but they didn't tell you where to go or what to do."

Walking toward the parking lot, Siemers added, he saw "the most heart-sickening thing I ever saw in my life. Bodies were all over . . . glass . . . water pouring into the street . . . people taking the injured to taxicabs . . . a man on crutches running around without a coat . . . puddles of blood on the island between the building and the parking lot."

'Everyone In Shock'

There was no screaming, Siemers said. "It seemed like everyone was in shock. The whole thing was just a complete wreck, with mobs of people just standing around. You can't believe it till you see something like this."

LES Rates Raised In Spite Of Protest

Several people testifying at the council hearing urged the council to consider a different way of figuring rates so that lower income and elderly people would not be so severely affected.

Glen Soukup, director of the Nebraska Commission on Aging, said the 30% hike in homeowners' bills would have a "devastating effect" on older people living on a fixed income.

Many elderly people will be forced to cut back on other vital services, such as medical aid and food, to keep the lights on and the house warm, Soukup warned.

He urged the council to consider setting up rates like California's "lifeline" rate system which offers subsidies to those in need.

Currently, LES bases its rates on what it costs to bring electricity to a person's home, business or industry.

The LES Board and staff are in the process of reviewing how those rates are determined and intend to present a report on various rate structures by June, LES Power Supply Manager Phil Michaels assured the council that LES is "listening to what people are saying."

"It just takes time to do the work," Michaels said.

Jeamey said the issue being debated Monday was not so much how much electric rates are raised, but, "how you raise them and who ends up paying how much."

Council members said they will take an active role in reviewing just how that is done and make a decision after the report is presented in June.

Wilson Meats Will Terminate Pork Operations At Omaha Plant

Omaha (AP) — Wilson and Co. will terminate pork operations at its Omaha plant Dec. 31, it was announced Monday.

Plant manager Robert Wheeler said he did not know how many workers would be affected by the termination. "It represents a high percentage of employees, but not a majority," he said.

About 1,000 employees were given six months notice when it was announced the company plant would close April 3.

Wheeler said the employees "will be paid as though they're working until April 3."

The termination was brought about "because of economics of livestock receipts," he said.

Fritz Sandoz Dies At Age 72

Gordon (AP) — Fritz Sandoz, the son of "Old Jules" described in a book by Mari Sandoz, died Monday in Gordon Hospital after a two-month illness. He was 72.

Sandoz, brother of the late author, lived on a Sheridan County ranch pioneered by his father. He had other ranching and cattle interests in Nebraska, Wyoming and South Dakota.

Candidate Recruitment In Order

Nebraska Republicans seem to be a bit uneasy.

Although historically the state has been their fiefdom, with House and Senate seats for the most part kept for years and passed along on almost a father-to-son basis, the GOP seemingly has some reason to worry.

The only elected Republican governor the state has had in 17 years was deposed after one term and some devoted, life-long party members helped to slam the door on him by either voting for his opponent or sitting out the race. Some high-ranking Nebraska Republicans grouse among themselves about the highly partisan, moderate-to-conservative current Democratic governor being, in their minds, a Republican at heart and receiving campaign money from Republican contributors. It ruffles even more when the current governor takes potshots at the Republican "hierarchy."

Thus far in the '70s, Democratic workers have done a more inspired job of registering voters, raising money and recruiting candidates for many local and state offices than that party has done in the last three or four decades. The state Democratic Party and many of its candidates are or have been relatively well financed. The Democratic Party is approaching parity with the GOP so far as voter strength is concerned. Local Democratic organizations in certain areas around the state have done a good job of pushing favored candidates for local and state office, even the nonpartisan offices.

Thus the Nebraska GOP has decided that a process of reinvigoration is in order. A recruitment program has been devised to find good candidates for offices at all governmental levels with one announced purpose being not to let the Democrats take an office by default. This is the latest of sporadic attempts by the Nebraska Republicans to remind themselves that keeping Nebraska Republican is helped by working at it.

While Nebraska Democrats are cheered by approaching voter parity, a better financial picture, a governor in the statehouse and other blessings, their smiles turn to frowns when attention is turned to other aspects of the real political world. A recruitment program of their own may be required. Here is a party with signs of latent good health which nevertheless faces a fratricidal U.S. Senate primary and, at this point, is unable to raise serious candidates to contest two U.S. House seats.

Although a capable challenger will probably be found in the Third District, Democrats apparently have virtually written off any challenge to Republican Charles Thone in the First District. "It is highly possible there will be no opponent," says Lancaster County Democratic Chairman Yvonne Hardesty. "... anyone who runs will be a sacrificial lamb," says Lancaster County Clerk of the District Court Kandra Hahn, a Democrat of acknowledged political acumen. Ms. Hahn believes Thone's success is bolstered by his district-wide visibility and the peoples' perceptions of him as a moderate.

A challenge of Thone would be difficult, but not impossible. It is the job of the opposition to change perceptions and offer alternatives.

If the Democrats cannot challenge for major offices, the improvements in the party's position here are illusory.

WASHINGTON — In a few days, 1975 will be gone, another drop of time, and most Americans seem to be saying "good riddance." It was mainly a year of tidying up after old blunders and extravagances, of high prices, unemployment and inflation, of sweeping away the stench of Vietnam and Watergate — all useful work, long delayed.

"Years have harder tasks than listening to a whisper or a sigh," Stephen Vincent Benet wrote in "The Golden Corpse," but mainly 1975 whispered and sighed. Like many previous years, it knew what it didn't want, but not what it wanted, and it didn't produce a single memorable speech or exciting vision of the Coming Age.

The year was foreshadowed on New Year's Eve with the collapse of Mr. Justice William O. Douglas, who had served on the Supreme Court of the United States for 36 years, longer than any other member in the long history of the high bench.

On New Year's Day, four former members of the Nixon administration — John Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, and Robert C. Mar-dian were convicted by a jury on all counts in the Watergate cover-up trial. It was a symbol of the past that was going, but nobody knew what was coming.

The rest of the year was very much the same. Nothing fundamental changed, but everything seemed in the process of changing. There was almost no movement in the relations between the United States, the Soviet Union and China, because nobody knew in these three capitals who would be in charge a year or so from now.

1975 was a reminder of the fragility of human life and power. It buried Franco of Spain, Chiang Kai-Shek of China, and Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, the last of the leaders of the thirties.

In Portugal, 1975 saw the last of the old empires. In Bangladesh and Chad, it saw the murders of new leaders and foreshadowed the coming struggles of the new independent states. In India, it saw the daughter of Nehru, presiding over "the largest democracy in the world," seize dictatorial power.

Nothing disastrous happened in 1975 to change the balance of power or sanity in the world, but everything seemed a little shaky.

The economies of the free nations were so wracked by inflation and unemployment that many thoughtful men and women wondered in public whether democracy could withstand the pressure.

Still, there were some modest gains in 1975. If it didn't make things much better, it didn't make them much worse. It was a year of caretakers in world politics, concentrating on stopping bad things rather than on venturing new things, and it made some progress or at least negotiated some compromises.

In the Middle East, there was a partial withdrawal of Israeli forces in the Sinai, and the Suez Canal was opened to world commerce for the first time in eight years. The British people voted to stay in the European Common Market, which was much better than if they had pulled out.

Also, the United States, Canada, Europe and the Soviet Union met at Helsinki and signed a declaration of political and personal principles, which may mean nothing now, but is at least a benchmark for political judgment in the future. And at the end of the year, the major industrial powers were meeting together, and talking with the oil-producing powers, the underdeveloped nations, and even with the basket cases about prices, raw materials, money and other common problems.

It is, of course, slightly goofy to engage in calendar-worship. Life is too long and complicated to be divided and analyzed usefully by mathematical years. Historically, 1975 had its special uses.

For depending on how you read the calendar, it was the last year of the third quarter of the most violent century in the history of the human family, and comparatively, the third quarter was not all that bad — at least better than the first quarter with World War I, or the second quarter with World War II and the Great Depression.

Also, philosophically, the years are useful, for at least they make us pause and wonder where we are and where we're going. Maybe the most important thing about 1975 in the United States is that so many people have been doing precisely that. Even if they haven't settled anything in these last 12 months, they have been analyzing everything — maybe subjecting life to more analysis than it can bear.

Talk to any thoughtful person you know, young or old, these days about the family, the church, the schools, the press, or politics, and you find that they are troubled but also that they are searching.

This is a profoundly disturbing experience, which can either tear us apart or, after great turmoil, bring us together. Say what you like about our troubles at the end of 1975, no nation in the world has dared to look at the conflicts of private and common life so severely.

The issues of abortion and busing, the constitutional conflicts between the privacy of the individual and the freedom of the press, the struggle between the federal executive and the legislature over the conduct of foreign policy in Angola and Cyprus, the requirements and dangers of the CIA and the FBI in a violent world — all these have been under the most serious debate and controversy in 1975.

They have raised great doubts. They have eroded our optimism and even our confidence in our political system and even in one another. But as Walter Cronkite says, "That's the way it is" at the end of 1975. It wasn't our best year, but at least we struggled.

Employers Okay 'Controlled Theft'

NEW YORK — Some people have no sense of timing. The holiday wrappings aren't even cleaned up yet — and already the bills are coming in.

Sort of takes the glow off the season. They could at least let us enjoy watching the kids have fun with the loot before they remind us how much it costs to play Santa.

It's just one more argument for putting off Christmas shopping until the last minute. That way, the bills come in while you're still recovering from New Year's Eve and the aspirin bottle's already handy.

But nobody told the computers the week after Christmas is when you try to forget how easy it is to flash those little plastic cards. So here, along with the Christmas greetings that didn't make it on time, is the print-out of last month's whirl through toyland.

You have, of course, gone overboard. That's why the stores hang up all those spun-sugar fairies and crystal-silver snowflakes: to lure you into going for broke.

But this year there's something to blame besides your own wishy-washy willpower. And it's not all inflation's fault. This year you can also blame the crime rate.

That's right. Shoplifting and employee theft are one reason the national rate is up 18% — and a very big reason your Christmas bills are so high. Somebody's got to pay for all those losses. . . and you didn't think it would be the merchants, did you?

Retail stores lose more than $2 billion a year in disappearing merchandise. That figures out at around $10 million a day, or one-fourth of their annual business.

And while shoplifting always goes up at Christmas-time, the biggest thieves are on the other side of the counter. Employees steal four times as much as sticky-fingered shoppers.

The greatest thing about this form of larceny is that they usually get away with it. Company bosses may go through the motions of trying to stop it, but deep down they look upon it as something they are stuck with. Until they can pass the loss on to the customer. Like at the end of the month.

And some bosses (brace yourself) actually condone it. Sort of as an extra "fringe benefit."

There are even industrial psychologists who, with perfectly straight faces, will tell you everybody comes out ahead when management winks at employee theft. As long, of course, as the hired hands steal by the rules.

They're not too complicated. The boss just figures out how much "controlled theft" he can tolerate and then sets up a signaling system that lets the crooks on his payroll know when they're over the limit. If said crook refuses to take the hint, he gets fired.

But as long as they play the game, everybody's happy. Worker morale goes up . . . snitching from the boss makes the job more exciting. . . and what they tote home is as good as that raise the old skindint won't okay.

The company gets a bargain too, according to the psychologists, because controlled theft keeps turnover costs and wages down . . . serves as a safety valve for employee frustration . . . and keeps all the little elves whistling happily as they work out their next hoist.

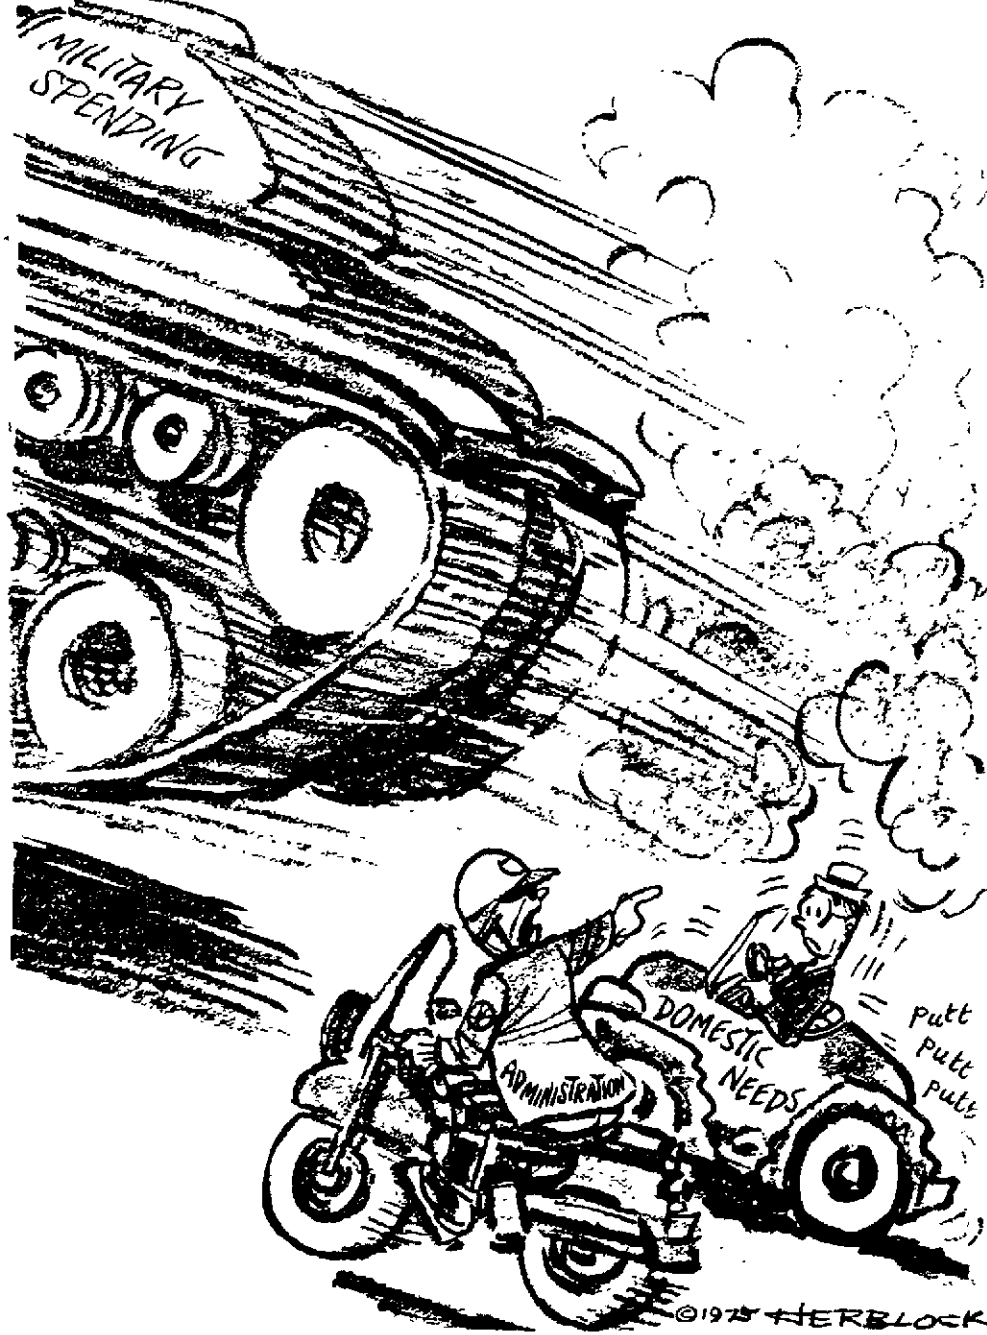

You'll notice, though, there's no "employee theft adjustment" on your monthly statement. That's a blind item . . . as in "robbed."

"WE'RE DRAWING SOME GUIDELINES FOR IT"

"YOU, THERE — PULL OVER TO THE CURB"

TOM WICKER

HHH Vs. Reagan

NEW YORK — Ronald Reagan of California and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota are now the leading choices of their parties for the 1976 Republican and Democratic presidential nominations. The Gallup poll discloses. Dr. Gallup and the Harris poll disagree as to which of the two would defeat the other, but the likelihood of a campaign between them — neither was given much of a chance a year ago — has added interest to the election year.

Humphrey's prospects may even have been enhanced by Reagan's emergence as the early Republican favorite. That is because Reagan is recognized even by the Democrats as an expert campaigner, whatever else they may think of him; and the possibility of his nomination turns Democratic thoughts to their own acknowledged experts, Edward Kennedy and Hubert Humphrey.

Since Kennedy is widely thought to have removed himself from all consideration, the net beneficiary is Humphrey.

"You can't be sure any of the less experienced candidates can handle a smooth operator like Reagan," a Democratic senator told me. "But we know Hubert's fast on his feet. We know he can turn a phrase. If it's Reagan on the other side, there's no age issue since they're both in their 60's."

Humphrey is still denying that he will enter any primaries and conceding only that he will accept the nomination but do nothing to win it, but just before Congress went home for the holidays even he was speculating with customary ebullience on another way in which Reagan's candidacy may help him.

As he sees it, a powerful challenge to a sitting president is bound to be of principle public interest during the early primaries. So the Reagan-Ford contest, as Humphrey puts it, will occupy "prime time," perhaps until April or later, with the Democratic race attracting less attention.

That means it will be just that much harder for any of the Democrats running in the primaries to capture the public's imagination, "soak up media interest" and begin pulling away from the pack. And if no candidate seems to be taking command in the primaries, that increases the possibility of a deadlocked convention that would turn to Hubert Humphrey.

If, for example, by April the field of Democrats is about as big as it is now, with no one candidate emerging as the leader, Humphrey thinks Gov. Jerry Brown of California may well put forward an uncommitted slate of delegates for his state's June primary, and engineer its election. Gov. Hugh Carey of New York already is committed to that course and if the two biggest delegations went to the convention uncommitted, the chances would be vastly greater that the nomination would be "brokered" for someone — with Humphrey a leading possibility.

The "moment of truth" for him, therefore, will come in June, after the last of the primaries and before the convention opens in July. As Humphrey sees it, he'll have time enough then to determine whether anyone has locked up the nomination in the primaries, and, if no one has, to decide whether to put together a last-minute organization for a Humphrey effort at the convention.

On the other hand, if he were to enter even the late primaries, he thinks he'd have to begin organizing in February at the latest. Humphrey not only has no taste for such a primary campaign; he thinks it would dissipate the advantage he derives from being an elder statesman "above the battle."

Some other Democrats don't agree. Walter Mondale, the other Minnesota senator and one of Humphrey's campaign managers in 1968 — who might himself be the leading contender today had he not withdrawn from contention — thinks no one can be nominated unless he competes in the primaries. As Mondale sees it, Humphrey could plunge into the New York primary — "a natural for him" win it big, and virtually chase all other candidates out of the race.

But "Fritz" Mondale is persuaded that Humphrey genuinely has not made up his mind either to seek the nomination or to foreclose the possibility — "he just doesn't want to get to the bottom line yet."

It may well be on this issue of whether Humphrey will — or should — move into the primaries that the Democratic presidential nomination will be decided. The strategies aside, however, Hubert Humphrey's relish for a campaign against Ronald Reagan is something he can hardly conceal.

"Reagan!" he exclaimed the other day. "He's just George Wallace sprinkled with can de cologne."

I would like to congratulate two coaches, Switzer and Osborne. Actually, two children posing as coaches. Also, the press, who should know better and the fans, who don't know a damn thing.

They have succeeded in making it appear that the University of Alabama is afraid to play a team from the Big Eight. How is this possible? Easy, when you have so many people who want to believe. The Big Eight tied up the Orange Bowl and tried to tie up the Sugar, Cotton and Fiesta Bowls. Greed can get rather nasty. Alabama would have played the TOP Big Eight team in the Orange Bowl. They were not invited. Why? Ask the Big Eight and the Orange Bowl.

Who decided that Penn. State is an easy team to play? I didn't hear any laughter when Ohio State played them during the regular season.

Ever since Switzer became coach of Oklahoma, he has been crying about something. To listen to him, you would have thought they should have been rewarded for cheating rather than punished when they were on probation. The press, represented by Jim Murry of L. Candidate Recruitment In Order

Nebraska Republicans seem to be a bit uneasy.

Although historically the state has been their fiefdom, with House and Senate seats for the most part kept for years and passed along on almost a father-to-son basis, the GOP seemingly has some reason to worry.

The only elected Republican governor the state has had in 17 years was deposed after one term and some devoted, life-long party members helped to slam the door on him by either voting for his opponent or sitting out the race. Some high-ranking Nebraska Republicans grouse among themselves about the highly partisan, moderate-to-conservative current Democratic governor being, in their minds, a Republican at heart and receiving campaign money from Republican contributors. It ruffles even more when the current governor takes potshots at the Republican "hierarchy."

Thus far in the '70s, Democratic workers have done a more inspired job of registering voters, raising money and recruiting candidates for many local and state offices than that party has done in the last three or four decades. The state Democratic Party and many of its candidates are or have been relatively well financed. The Democratic Party is approaching parity with the GOP so far as voter strength is concerned. Local Democratic organizations in certain areas around the state have done a good job of pushing favored candidates for local and state office, even the nonpartisan offices.

Thus the Nebraska GOP has decided that a process of reinvigoration is in order. A recruitment program has been devised to find good candidates for offices at all governmental levels with one announced purpose being not to let the Democrats take an office by default. This is the latest of sporadic attempts by the Nebraska Republicans to remind themselves that keeping Nebraska Republican is helped by working at it.

While Nebraska Democrats are cheered by approaching voter parity, a better financial picture, a governor in the statehouse and other blessings, their smiles turn to frowns when attention is turned to other aspects of the real political world. A recruitment program of their own may be required. Here is a party with signs of latent good health which nevertheless faces a fratricidal U.S. Senate primary and, at this point, is unable to raise serious candidates to contest two U.S. House seats.

Although a capable challenger will probably be found in the Third District, Democrats apparently have virtually written off any challenge to Republican Charles Thone in the First District. "It is highly possible there will be no opponent," says Lancaster County Democratic Chairman Yvonne Hardesty. "... anyone who runs will be a sacrificial lamb," says Lancaster County Clerk of the District Court Kandra Hahn, a Democrat of acknowledged political acumen. Ms. Hahn believes Thone's success is bolstered by his district-wide visibility and the peoples' perceptions of him as a moderate.

A challenge of Thone would be difficult, but not impossible. It is the job of the opposition to change perceptions and offer alternatives.

If the Democrats cannot challenge for major offices, the improvements in the party's position here are illusory.

Freedom Measured, Defined

A recent wire service survey of world espionage and police activity pointed out that while the U.S. publicly debates to what extent the secret agencies should use the power they have, the people of most other nations are kept in the dark about the operations of external and internal espionage and policing functions.

To a great degree, of course, secrecy in the espionage area is essential. But investigating and publicly questioning how far police and spy agencies actually go in compliance with their duties, whether or not they have broken with the intent of those who created them and whether agencies are being used for the political perpetuation of entrenched leaders, is a perfectly valid procedure in any society which claims to be free. Claims that public inquiry jeopardizes national security are nonsense and inconsistent with what we believe to be our heritage.

Sen. Frank Church has said the Congress will continue to investigate American secret and enforcement agencies, and it is only right that the investigations continue — with a proper respect for sensitive areas.

But that respect can't be overblown; we should not fail to open our eyes out of fear of actions whose consequences are matters of speculation only.

We think a good, general measure of freedom is that the freedom of a people is proportional to their ability to publicly question their leadership and the forces, hidden and open, which influence their destiny. People who fear such questioning can be susceptible to totalitarian rule.

JAMES RESTON

WASHINGTON — In a few days, 1975 will be gone, another drop of time, and most Americans seem to be saying "good riddance." It was mainly a year of tidying up after old blunders and extravagances, of high prices, unemployment and inflation, of sweeping away the stench of Vietnam and Watergate — all useful work, long delayed.

"Years have harder tasks than listening to a whisper or a sigh," Stephen Vincent Benet wrote in "The Golden Corpse," but mainly 1975 whispered and sighed. Like many previous years, it knew what it didn't want, but not what it wanted, and it didn't produce a single memorable speech or exciting vision of the Coming Age.

The year was foreshadowed on New Year's Eve with the collapse of Mr. Justice William O. Douglas, who had served on the Supreme Court of the United States for 36 years, longer than any other member in the long history of the high bench.

On New Year's Day, four former members of the Nixon administration — John Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, and Robert C. Marland — were convicted by a jury on all counts in the Watergate cover-up trial. It was a symbol of the past that was going, but nobody knew what was coming.

The rest of the year was very much the same. Nothing fundamental changed, but everything seemed in the process of changing. There was almost no movement in the relations between the United States, the Soviet Union and China, because nobody knew in these three capitals who would be in charge a year or so from now.

1975 was a reminder of the fragility of human life and power. It buried Franco of Spain, Chiang Kai-Shek of China, and Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, the last of the leaders of the thirties.

In Portugal, 1975 saw the last of the old empires. In Bangladesh and Chad, it saw the murders of new leaders and foreshadowed the coming struggles of the new independent states. In India, it saw the daughter of Nehru, presiding over "the largest democracy in the world," seize dictatorial power.

Anderson Unlikely In Third District

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Democratic Party's most promising congressional prospect in the Third District all but closed the door Monday on a 1976 candidacy.

"I've not said definitely, but it's very unlikely," State Sen. Gary Anderson of Axtell said.

Anderson expects to make that decision final and formal within the next week or two.

Family obligations would make a congressional bid next year "very unfair," Anderson said.

on the heels of McCook dentist Don Blank's decision not to seek the Republican nomination for the post now held by GOP Congresswoman Virginia Smith.

Will Back Smith

Blank, who lost to Mrs. Smith by an eyelash in the 1974 Republican primary, said he will support the congresswoman's re-election.

But, in a telephone interview, Blank said his decision did not rest on any understanding between the two that Mrs. Smith would serve only one more term.

"Absolutely not," Blank said. "I've heard those rumors, but they are not true. She has told me that she will make such a decision term by term.

Separate Decisions

"And so will I. We will each reach that decision (whether to be a candidate) separately," Mrs. Smith is 64.

Blank said he became convinced that he should not run next year as a result of a private voter survey in the district and "conversations with others."

Anderson, who is serving his first term in the Legislature, was the 1974 campaign manager for Democratic congressional nominee Wayne Ziebarth.

Democrats had hoped that the 36-year-old legislator would make the race on his own next year.

'Unfair To Family'

"I wouldn't see my family except on Sunday mornings," Anderson said. "And that's terribly unfair to a family, especially when the kids are young."

"When the Legislature is in session, I don't see much of them for five months. With Congress, it would be the whole year."

"Considering the realities of the Third District, a Democrat would need to come back most weekends and tromp around the district if he had any chance of being re-elected."

Anderson is not even sure he can seek re-election to the Legislature next year.

Legislature very much," he said.

"If the salary were decent, I could get interested in staying a long time."

Senators are salaries at $400 a month, but receive no expense money. They are reimbursed for one round trip home per legislative session.

"That's a tough thing for some of us," Anderson noted.

Last 9 Selective Service Offices In Nebraska Being Closed In '76

By The Associated Press

The last nine Selective Service offices in Nebraska will be closed in 1976, leaving only State Selective Service headquarters in Lincoln open, according to Edward Binder, head of the Nebraska Selective Service office.

Binder said he is uncertain of when the nine offices, located in Omaha, Norfolk, Columbus, O'Neill, Grand Island, Kearney, North Platte, Scottsbluff and Lincoln, will be closed.

The requirement for all 18-year-old men to register for the draft ended last April 1, Binder said. He said plans for a one-day-a-year registration of all 18-year-olds were to take effect in 1976, but those have been suspended.

Binder said he and other state Selective Service chiefs are to attend a meeting on the matter in New Orleans next month.

All Selective Service offices nationwide are being closed under a national directive, he said.

With no one being inducted into the service, he said, the Selective Service national office has begun closing all offices across the country.

Binder added that the question still remains as to whether the United States still needs the registration of able men, even if the country is not at war.

At its height, Nebraska had 108 Selective Service offices, employing about 200 persons.

Last year, that number dwindled to 20 offices.

There are now nine Selective Service offices in Nebraska, employing 25 persons.

Binder said the Jan. 10 date had been set for the closing of the offices, but that had been postponed. There is no date set for the closing of the offices.

Burglary Reported

Stereo equipment, a shotgun, and a television valued at a total of slightly more than $1,000 were taken in a burglary at the Greg Hotovy home at 1005 D, according to police reports. Entry was made by breaking a window. The burglary was discovered Sunday.

Former Newscaster Candidate For House

Omaha (AP) — Former Omaha television newscaster Lee Terry Monday formally announced he would seek the Republican nomination for the second District congressional seat.

Terry, 43, who for nearly 15 years was a KETV newscaster, criticized court-order school busing.

"You can't take an interest in America without being interested in integration," Terry said at a news conference here.

"But I consider forced busing absolutely the wrong way to go."

Terry, noting that Omaha is under federal order to integrate its schools, said he hopes the community will avoid violence.

"People want to integrate, but not through forced busing," he said. He said the busing issue is likely to be one of the major issues in the congressional race.

Terry, in announcing his candidacy, said the federal politicians of today have done too much "to remove the people from government."

He said federal regulations too often take powers away from state and local governments, especially when conformity to federal regulations is tied to the distribution of federal funds.

Terry is the third Republican candidate to announce for the district's GOP nomination.

Omaha City Councilman Monte Taylor, 44, and Joe B. Moss, 46, an engineer at the Western Electric works, filed previously.

Douglas County Commissioner P. J. Morgan has indicated he will join the race long before the March 12 filing deadline arrives.

Legislative Candidate Is Farmer

Howard Lamb, an Anselmo farmer and rancher, Monday filed with the secretary of state's office as a candidate for the Unicameral in the 43rd District.

That seat is now held by Sen. Otho Kime of Valentine.

Lamb, 51, said he feels the big issue now and in the future is land use planning. On that issue, he said, "It is important that the responsibility for land use planning remain with the local people."

"There has long been land use planning in rural areas but this responsibility has been assumed by the owner of the land," Lamb said. "It is doubtful that some remote governmental body could have done a better job."

Lamb is currently president of the Custer Public Power District, director of the Federal Land Bank Association of Broken Bow and director of KRVN Rural Radio Association.

He has also served as president of the Anselmo-Merna Board of Education and as president of the Nebraska Association of County Extension Agents.

Sale Would Not Change Yankee Hill

Operations of Yankee Hill Brick Manufacturing Co. would remain the same in event of a proposed sale to Pacific Holding Corp. of Los Angeles, according to Jim Tatum, executive vice president of the current owner.

Financial Corporation of Arizona (FCA), also of Los Angeles.

In fact, the sale probably would aid the company in the long run, he said, because Pacific Holding also owns a brick company. This would allow for comparisons and new ideas, Tatum said. The sale would also allow for more security and better opportunities for employees, he said. Yankee Brick employs a yearly average of 70 employees.

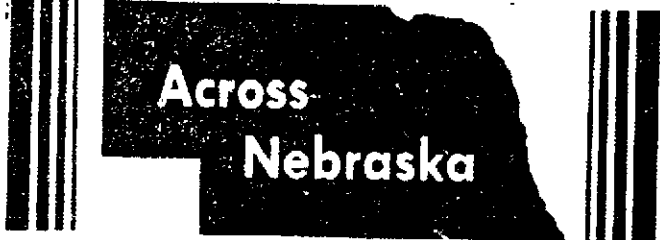

Although most of its operation is manufacturing brick, the company also makes small amounts of pottery clay and material used in school track surfaces. Annual sales are about $2 million.

Approval of shareholders is necessary for the proposed sale to be completed and meetings are planned for the first quarter of 1976, he said. The transaction could be completed by March or April 1976.

FCA has owned Yankee Brick since 1969, when it was purchased from the Robert Ferguson Co. of Lincoln.

Airlines May Merge

Brussels (AP) — A merger or association of the money-troubled Belgian, Dutch and Luxembourg national airlines appears to be well under way and while no firm decisions have been made, Belgian press reports said the new company would be named "Royal Benelux Airlines."

Arcadia Robberies Investigated

Arcadia (AP) — The Valley County sheriff's office is investigating a series of early morning robberies of four Arcadia businesses. Authorities said $3,300 in checks, cash and merchandise were taken sometime between 1:30 a.m. and 5 a.m. Sunday. Authorities said the thieves gained entry by breaking down the back doors of the businesses.

Blair Hospital Rates Hiked

Blair — Terry Thompson, administrator of Memorial Community Hospital of Blair, has announced that higher hospital rates will go into effect the first of the year. The new rates have been approved by the rate review committee of the Nebraska Hospital Association, Thompson said. Private room rates will increase from $52 to $58 per day with semi-private room rates going from $44 to $50, according to the hospital administrator.

Harley Setting Chambers' Record

Chambers — With the arrival of Jan. 1, 1976, Louis Harley of Chambers will set a record never before matched by a businessman in Chambers. On that day he will complete 50 years as a businessman in this Holt County community. Beginning his work in Chambers Jan. 1, 1926, as a blacksmith, in the J. W. Walter shop, Harley with his brother, Victor, became owner of the shop and a small hardware store nine years later. The blacksmith shop was sold in 1940, and in addition to hardware machinery was added to the store's stock. Louis Harley's future plans include remaining behind his desk at the store.

New Year's Eve Sing Planned

Tilden — The Petersen family of Tilden is sponsoring its eighth annual New Year's Eve Gospel Sing at the Tilden Auditorium Wednesday, beginning at 8 p.m. Participating in the program will be the Elwin Stevenson family of Albion, Tim Petersen of Hiawatha, Kan., the Schwarting family of Oakdale, the Arnold Fox family and the Lynn Iverson family, both of Albion, the Tilden Petersens and the Circuit Riders of Forest City, Mo. In past years, more than 150 persons have attended the sing annually.

Jorgensen Leaving Arapahoe Post

Arapahoe — Dana Jorgensen, administrator of the C.A. Mues Memorial Good Samaritan Center at Arapahoe the past two years, has been transferred to Manila, Iowa, as administrator of the new 60-bed Evangelical Lutheran Good Samaritan Society home. Replacing Jorgensen at Arapahoe will be Gene Rall, who has been administrator of the Good Samaritan Society Center at Atkinson the past five years.

Heller Will Speak At Omaha Meet

Omaha (AP) — The former chairman of the President's Council on Economic Advisers, Dr. Walter Heller, will be the featured speaker Jan. 9 at the Greater Omaha Chamber of Commerce annual luncheon. Heller served under Presidents Kennedy and Johnson.

Coal Spilled In Alliance

Alliance (UPI) — Two loaded coal cars of a Burlington Northern freight train bound from Gillette, Wyo., to Pueblo, Colo., derailed early Monday and fell from an overpass in Alliance, spilling 200 tons of coal.

Burlington Northern officials said the cause of the accident was a broken axle on one of the cars. Three other cars in the 145-unit train derailed but did not fall onto the street, which is U.S. 385-Nebraska 2 in this western Nebraska community.

Railroad officials said a portion of the overpass's steel structure would be replaced. The overpass carries north and southbound tracks.

No one was injured in the 2:15 a.m. accident. The spilled coal was cleared by 8 a.m.

Anderson Unlikely In Third District

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Democratic Party's most promising congressional prospect in the Third District all but closed the door Monday on a 1976 candidacy.

"I've not said definitely, but it's very unlikely," State Sen. Gary Anderson of Axtell said.

Anderson expects to make that decision final and formal within the next week or two.

Family obligations would make a congressional bid next year "very unfair," Anderson said.

on the heels of McCook dentist Don Blank's decision not to seek the Republican nomination for the post now held by GOP Congresswoman Virginia Smith.

Will Back Smith

Blank, who lost to Mrs. Smith by an eyelash in the 1974 Republican primary, said he will support the congresswoman's re-election.

But, in a telephone interview, Blank said his decision did not rest on any understanding between the two that Mrs. Smith would serve only one more term.

"Absolutely not," Blank said. "I've heard those rumors, but they are not true. She has told me that she will make such a decision term by term.

Separate Decisions

"And so will I. We will each reach that decision (whether to be a candidate) separately," Mrs. Smith is 64.

Blank said he became convinced that he should not run next year as a result of a private voter survey in the district and "conversations with others."

Anderson, who is serving his first term in the Legislature, was the 1974 campaign manager for Democratic congressional nominee Wayne Ziebarth.

Democrats had hoped that the 36-year-old legislator would make the race on his own next year.

'Unfair To Family'

"I wouldn't see my family except on Sunday mornings," Anderson said. "And that's terribly unfair to a family, especially when the kids are young."

County Personnel System Center Of More Bickering

By NANCY HICKS
Star Staff Writer

Old issues were rehearsed and tempers kindled when the county commissioners and the rest of the county elected officials met with two Lincoln state senators Monday to discuss the county's personnel system.

By the end of the two-hour meeting, about a third of the group had left in frustration, disgust or anger.

Under discussion were a series of amendments to the two-year-old personnel system legislation which would take final authority away from the County Board and divide it among employees and all elected officials.

Investigation Of Shooting To Continue

Lincoln Star Special

Rushville — Investigation continues here into a Christmas Eve shooting incident. Sheridan County Attorney Michael V. Smith said late Monday.

Sam McHenry III, Sheridan County associate judge, escaped injury when two shots were fired at him while he was driving along Highway 87 north of Rushville, according to County Sheriff Jim Talbot.

The shots came from a car following McHenry. Sheriff Talbot said. Neither shot hit the McHenry auto, the sheriff added.

McHenry was unable to get the license number of the car involved, the sheriff said.

McHenry late Monday declined comment on the case.

Sheriff Talbot believes the incident was probably the result of someone disliking a sentence handed down by McHenry.

The State Patrol's criminal investigation department is working with Sheridan County authorities in the matter.

Thone Says Reform Best Idea

Washington (UPI) — There's no better way to observe the American bicentennial than once again to set people on the move toward governmental reform, according to Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb.

There would be no finer observance of the 200th birthday of the United States than a nationwide citizen movement to make our government more truly responsive to the people," Thone said, adding, "American gripes against big government as 1876 begins are somewhat like the colonies' grievances against King George III of England in 1776."

The congressman said that in the days when the Declaration of Independence was signed, one of the stated complaints against the king was that "he has erected a multitude of new offices and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people."

That situation isn't all that different from the one people find themselves in now, Thone said.

"The Congress has erected a multitude of new offices. Swarms of inspectors and bundles of forms are sent out to harass American businesses and individuals. The cost of the many new federal programs is eating out our substance."

But instead of granting the wishes of the majority for change, Thone said, Congress is granting the wishes of the many small "but vocal groups seeking more government programs, more government spending." As a result, he said, the cost of government is growing even faster than the price of fuel.

Thone said that because of such spending, which he called the "chief cause of inflation," the incomes of Americans are reduced in actual value each year.

Americans fought a revolution 200 years ago just because government didn't reflect citizen views and "I feel we have an unrepresentative government today," the congressman said.

"I urge citizens of Nebraska and the nation to unite in 1976 in efforts to make our federal government more responsive."

Hipple Gone During Fire

Donald O. Hipple, owner of Sky View Trailer Ranch in Lincoln, was not present when a mobile home at the ranch caught on fire.

In a Sunday Journal and Star story it was incorrectly reported that Hipple was assisting James Aylward in installing equipment on the mobile home, owned by Aylward, when it caught on fire and was gutted.

The information as it appeared in the Sunday story was supplied by the Fire Department.

Mayor Denies Harassing Chambers

Omaha (AP) — Mayor Edward Zorinsky denied Monday that police harassed Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers and his family.

"He probably just feels like I did when I got two overtime parking tickets. He thinks the police are picking on him," Zorinsky said.

Chambers said in a letter to Zorinsky that on Dec. 12, police towed away a camper bus owned by Chambers' wife while it was parked on a street near his home.

Chambers said the officer who ordered the vehicle towed said he had been told by his sergeant to red tag vehicles being stored on city streets. Chambers said the bus wasn't stored on the street, but is licensed, insured, has a current state inspection sticker, and is frequently used to take young people on outings.

"From the policemen I've talked to, it wasn't intended as harassment," Zorinsky said.

The mayor said the police were simply enforcing the city's "dead storage" ordinance. He said Chambers had three days warning.

City ordinance makes it unlawful to park a vehicle in the same spot on a street for more than 48 consecutive hours.

Nebraska Share Of Conservation Aid $1.8 Million

The U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service has announced that $1.8 million will be available to Nebraska farmers for cost-sharing projects this fiscal year under the Great Plains Conservation Program.

The funds will be available to farmers in the 61 counties west of U.S. 81, a north-south highway running through York. The $1.8 million figure, equal to last fiscal year's allocation, can be used for plant cover, livestock wells, dams, pipelines, range reseeding, terraces and land leveling.

Farmers can apply for the funds at local Soil Conservation Service offices. To date, the program has involved 8.3 million acres owned by 6,500 farmers in the 61-county area.

Swanson Will Head Detectives

Omaha (AP) — Deputy Police Chief Jack Swanson will assume command of all police detective functions Jan. 1, Police Chief Richard Andersen said Monday.

Swanson, 39, replaces Deputy Chief Glenn Gates, who has retired after heading the criminal investigation bureau for nearly eight years.

Swanson will be in charge of all investigations of major crimes, including homicide, robbery, burglary, auto theft and fraud as well as the vice, narcotics and the juvenile units.

Deputy Chief Joseph Friend, 46, will become head of the uniform field bureau, the largest single police organization, which includes all uniform police officers.

Deputy Chief Monroe Coleman, 56, will move from the uniform field bureau to head the administrative services bureau at the same time, Andersen said.

The chief said he will promote an officer to the deputy chief rank sometime in the next two weeks to fill the vacancy left by the retirement of Gates and head the technical services bureau.

Andersen said there will be some administrative reorganization of detective activities under Swanson.

Omaha Woman Injured In Fire

Omaha (AP) — Thelma Laird, 57, Omaha, was listed in critical condition in a local hospital Monday following an early morning fire in her southside apartment.

Firemen were called to her apartment shortly after midnight and found her on the kitchen floor. Firemen theorize the fire began in a rocking chair in the living room, possibly from a cigarette.

Fire had spread through the living room when firemen arrived.

Mental Laws Hearing Planned

State Sen. Thomas Kennedy of Newman Grove said Monday another public hearing will be held on a bill designed to replace the provisions of Nebraska's current mental health commitment law thrown out by a federal three-judge panel.

Kennedy noted the Unicameral's Health and Welfare Committee, which he chairs, already has a bill that was introduced during this year's session in its hands.

But he said the latest draft of that bill, which will technically be amendments to it, is different from the original in a number of areas. He added he had just received a final copy of those amendments Monday.

Because there are differences between the latest draft and the version originally introduced, the lawmaker said, "I'm sure we're going to have another public hearing."

Kennedy said that hearing would be soon.

He said in the meantime he is having copies made of the opinion handed down last week by the three-judge panel in Omaha for the benefit of committee members.

The three-judge panel focused attention on the lack of due process procedures in current involuntary commitment provisions.

Shortly after the ruling was handed down, Kennedy said it came as no surprise. He also said a new law would have been enacted this year had not the problem turned out to be more complex than anticipated.

The lawmaker also said he wanted at least enough time before another hearing is held to make sure the amendments conform to the thinking of the federal judges.

The latest version was drafted by an outside attorney hired for that task alone under the direction of Sen. John Cavanaugh of Omaha.

Sands Is Bound Over On One Embezzlement Count

The former manager of radio stations KECK and KHAT was bound over to Lancaster District Court Monday on a single count of embezzlement.

Fred Sands, also known as Fred Scott, waived his right to a preliminary hearing in County Court. At the same time three counts of embezzlement filed earlier against him were replaced by a single count covering the same span of time covered by the earlier charges.

Sands took checks from advertisers and deposited them in his personal bank account, bypassing the station's bookkeeping system.

He was arrested in November in Grand Forks, N.D., where he was traveling with a female singer who he managed. His home and family are in St. Paul, Minn., according to testimony in County Court.

No. 1 On Danger List

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

Firefighting is the most dangerous occupation in the United States. That conclusion was reached in a 1974 annual death and injury survey taken by the International Association of Fire Fighters.

Some 100 firemen lost their lives doing their job, according to the survey which drew from U.S. Labor Department statistics gathered from 1,800 governmental bodies involving over 168,000 employees during 1974. That moved the occupation up from third place to the top spot, a position it has held several times before.

Locally, the picture isn't that bad, according to Lincoln Fire Chief Dallas Johnson. The last fireman killed in Lincoln was killed in a traffic accident on 10th Street during the early morning about 11 years ago, Johnson said.

99 Days Lost

The Lincoln department had only 99 days of lost time from accidents in the 1974 reporting period, Johnson noted.

Injuries are calculated in the Lincoln department by work days missed, Johnson explained. Two days are figured for a missed shift since firemen are on duty for 24 hours and off 24 hours, he added.

Thus the 1974 tally, showing 99 work days missed, translates into 50 shifts, Johnson noted. In 1973 187 days were missed, 215 in 1972, 172 in 1971, 297 in 1970, 410 in 1969 and 263 in 1968.

"We seem to have more back injuries than anything else," Johnson said, noting that one of the years with a high number of missed days reflected the back injury of one firefighter who "had the entire 36 linear feet of the side of a house collapse on him in 1972." He did receive light duty around the station so the "figure is possibly a bit distorted," Johnson said.

More Firemen

Personnel with the department has also increased "possibly 20%" during the reporting period, so "the picture is really not so glum with Lincoln firemen," he added.

Smoke inhalation shouldn't really be a problem with the Lincoln firemen, either, he added, since "We can have just about every man on duty (79 of them) in a mask when they go to the fire."

One fireman has died in the 1975 reporting period, but his death came on an off-duty day at his cabin near Fremont, Johnson said. "The fact that the death was a heart attack does mean that it was occupation-related, however," he added.

The biggest cause for sick leave days to Lincoln firemen? "The common cold," Johnson replied. "Of course, we don't always work in the nicest weather, and the things we deal with can't necessarily be scheduled to happen on nice days," he concluded.

The second most hazardous occupation, according to the study which also involved the National Safety Council in fact-finding, was mining with 71 deaths reported. Construction with 63 agriculture with 54 and police with 51 deaths rounded out the top five.

For every 100 firemen in the country, 47.3 received a non-fatal injury in 1974. For the period from 1965 through 1974, 86 of every 100,000 firemen were injured and 55 of every 100,000 policemen were injured. There were 207 on-the-job injuries for Lincoln firemen in 1974.

That rate means that there was at least one injury for every two firemen, or that a firefighter had only a 50-50 chance of getting through the year without being injured.

Not all injuries are suffered at the scene. Of the 56,296 reported in 1974, 43,767 were injured at the scene while the others were hurt in training, driving to and from fire alarms or hurt in station accidents.

Most common injury was sprains and strains which accounted for 29.6% of those reported. Cuts were involved in 18.2%, inhalation of toxic gases accounted for 12.1% and 10.2% were burns.

In recent weeks, four firemen have been injured while on duty in Lincoln. Three were injured in a two-alarm fire on Washington Street Nov. 29 and one was injured while aiding in a rescue operation at a traffic accident Dec. 11.

Opening lead - king of clubs.

The great advantage of being declarer is that you immediately see all your assets and liabilities when dummy comes down, while if you are a defender you see only half of your side's resources and half of declarer's resources.

Declarer knows at once exactly where he is weak or strong, while the defenders don't. It is largely because of this that declarer sometimes makes a contract that it is theoretically impossible to make.

Here is a case where declarer was unusually successful. West led the king of clubs and South saw he was in trouble. There were nine tricks, all right, but no way of cashing them because the diamonds were blocked and there was no entry to dummy outside of the ace of clubs.

Declarer ducked the club lead, hoping West would shift to another suit and give South a chance to cash the ace of diamonds before the club ace was forced out of dummy.

But West continued with the queen, destroying that hope. Declarer realized that the situation now appeared highly unpromising - until it suddenly occurred to South that another duck in clubs might pay surprisingly good dividends. Declarer realized that the second duck could forever sever his contact with dummy, but he also realized that West might not know this.

Sure enough, West then played the jack of clubs, and now declarer was out of the woods. He discarded his ace of diamonds on the ace of clubs, and he then cashed six diamonds and two hearts to make the contract.

Perhaps West should somehow have sized up the actual situation and discontinued clubs after two rounds of the suit, but this decision is much easier to make if one has the advantage of seeing all 52 cards.

Secret Ballot Your Right

DEAR ABBY: My husband is mean. He bought me a new Chevrolet, then wouldn't give me the keys until I signed a pledge to support George Wallace in '76. He and I never agree on anything, including politics.

Abby, I don't think this pledge should be binding since he forced me to sign it. My preacher says it is not binding as it was signed under duress. I'm afraid to tell my husband what the preacher said since he doesn't think too much of the preacher and might make me sign another pledge to quit attending "that damn fool Baptist Church."

I value your opinion. Should I support Mr. Wallace? I don't like him, but then I don't like anyone else either, including my husband.

C.M. IN TUSTIN, CALIF.

DEAR C.M.: The secret ballot is an inalienable right in the U.S.A. You can't sign it away, and your husband can't force you to.

The "pledge" he demands is both absurd and unenforceable. Vote for the candidate of your choice.

DEAR ABBY: In response to the letter about Fisher the Poodle. Of course, I believe dogs understand what is being said to them.

Even though we provided a sitter for Ferdinand, our English bulldog, during our absence, he was very much annoyed with us upon our return.

He ignored our warm and friendly greetings, and wouldn't even come near us for days.

Then, my husband finally cornered him and explained in detail that we had to leave him and go to England because we weren't able to find a collar large enough for him here.

It took Ferdinand a long time to buy that story, but eventually he was wagging his tail and happily rejoined the family.

VERA IN NEWPORT

DEAR VERA: Next time, explain to your English bulldog where you are going and why, and you won't get the cold shoulder on your return.

DEAR ABBY: I am a healthy, active 76-year-old woman, and nobody takes me for a day older than 60. I lost my husband four years ago and have dated many interesting, eligible men since, but I never considered remarrying - until I met Julius.

He is a handsome, 69-year-old southern gentleman-type who was much too proper to go beyond a kiss before marriage.

To cut a long story short, Julius and I were married two months ago, and much to my surprise, I discovered that he didn't know the first thing about satisfying a woman. He had been married twice, so I couldn't understand it.

It doesn't seem possible for a man whose kisses promised so much to be so totally inept when it comes to lovemaking. (He's unbelievably selfish.)

Perhaps the bedroom performance shouldn't be so important to a woman my age, but it is.

I pretend that he is a good lover, but he's miserable. How can I let Julius know that he's not satisfying me without hurting his ego?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: An improved marital relationship is more important than Julius' ego. You do him no favor by pretending satisfaction. If he's able to satisfy himself, he's able to satisfy you. Some honest dialogue can make him more sensitive to your needs. You can be effective without being cruel. Start talking.

Opening-lead - king of clubs.

The great advantage of being declarer is that you immediately see all your assets and liabilities when dummy comes down, while if you are a defender you see only half of your side's resources and half of declarer's resources.

Declarer knows at once exactly where he is weak or strong, while the defenders don't. It is largely because of this that declarer sometimes makes a contract that it is theoretically impossible to make.

Here is a case where declarer was unusually successful. West led the king of clubs and South saw he was in trouble. There were nine tricks, all right, but no way of cashing them because the diamonds were blocked and there was no entry to dummy outside of the ace of clubs.

Declarer ducked the club lead, hoping West would shift to another suit and give South a chance to cash the ace of diamonds before the club ace was forced out of dummy.

But West continued with the queen, destroying that hope. The situation now appeared highly unpromising — until it suddenly occurred to South that another duck in clubs might pay surprisingly good dividends. Declarer realized that the second duck could forever sever his contact with dummy, but he also realized that West might not know this.

Sure enough, West then played the jack of clubs, and now declarer was out of the woods. He discarded his ace of diamonds on the ace of clubs, and he then cashed six diamonds and two hearts to make the contract.

Perhaps West should somehow have sized up the actual situation and discontinued clubs after two rounds of the suit, but this decision is much easier to make if one has the advantage of seeing all 52 cards.

PLANNING A DO-IT-YOURSELF MOVE?

The neighbors pickup and rented trailers seem like a much cheaper way to move than heavy trucks and professional movers. Be sure to weigh the savings against the high risk of damage or injury. Slipped discs and broken hips can cost years of pain and thousands of dollars. The decision is yours.

Secret Ballot Your Right

DEAR ABBY: My husband is mean. He bought me a new Chevrolet, then wouldn't give me the keys until I signed a pledge to support George Wallace in '76. He and I never agree on anything, including politics.

Abby, I don't think this pledge should be binding since he forced me to sign it. My preacher says it is not binding as it was signed under duress.

I'm afraid to tell my husband what the preacher said since he doesn't think too much of the preacher and might make me sign another pledge to quit attending "that damn fool Baptist Church."

I value your opinion. Should I support Mr. Wallace? I don't like him, but then I don't like anyone else either, including my husband.

C.M. IN TUSTIN, CALIF.

DEAR C.M.: The secret ballot is an inalienable right in the U.S.A. You can't sign it away, and your husband can't force you to.

The "pledge" he demands is both absurd and unenforceable. Vote for the candidate of your choice.

DEAR ABBY: In response to the letter about Pisher the Poodle: Of course, I believe dogs understand what is being said to them.

Even though we provided a sitter for Ferdinand, our English bulldog, during our absence, he was very much annoyed with us upon our return.

He ignored our warm and friendly greetings, and wouldn't even come near us for days.

Then, my husband finally cornered him and explained in detail that we had to leave him and go to England because we weren't able to find a collar large enough for him here.

It took Ferdinand a long time to buy that story, but eventually he was wagging his tail and happily rejoined the family.

VERA IN NEWPORT

DEAR VERA: Next time, explain to your English bulldog where you are going and why, and you won't get the cold shoulder on your return.

DEAR ABBY: I am a healthy, active 76-year-old woman, and nobody takes me for a day older than 60. I lost my husband four years ago and have dated many interesting, eligible men since, but I never considered remarrying — until I met Julius.

He is a handsome, 69-year-old southern gentleman-type who was much too proper to go beyond a kiss before marriage. To cut a long story short, Julius and I were married two months ago, and much to my surprise, I discovered that he didn't know the first thing about satisfying a woman. He had been married twice, so I couldn't understand it.

It doesn't seem possible for a man whose kisses promised so much to be so totally inept when it comes to lovemaking. (He's unbelievably selfish.)

Perhaps the bedroom performance shouldn't be so important to a woman my age, but it is.

I pretend that he is a good lover, but he's miserable. How can I let Julius know that he's not satisfying me without hurting his ego?

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: An improved marital relationship is more important than Julius' ego. You do him no favor by pretending satisfaction. If he's able to satisfy himself, he's able to satisfy you. Some honest dialogue can make him more sensitive to your needs. You can be effective without being cruel. Start talking.

She Can't Forget Shock Of Her Husband's Death

By JOANNE FARRIS
A READER WRITES: "My husband died three months ago, and I am having a very hard time trying to get used to his being gone. I have no children. I cry most of the time and do some housework, very little I cannot even think of getting a job because I cannot keep my mind on anything. I have some family, but they all have problems of their own, and very few friends. Tom and I mostly kept to ourselves. We were happy just being together."
"He died at 53 before my eyes. He was not sick for even five minutes. The shock is just too much. We had so many plans. Now I have nothing. My husband's sister lives with me, but she cannot take his place. If I only knew how to go on. I will be 54 in a few days. But it seems as if my life is over. If you have any answers please put them in your column. I am sure there are others who feel as I do. I go to church but it does not help at all."
COMMENT: I think that under the circumstances you are not doing badly. You write the above letter, which indicates that you perceive your problem in a realistic way, and you are already exploring alternatives,

Algeria, Libya Okay Mutual Military Aid

Algiers, Algeria (UPI) — Algeria announced Monday it has won unqualified support from Libya in its search for foreign diplomatic and material help for its threatened military confrontation with Morocco.
President Houari Boumedienne of Algeria and Libyan chief of state Moammar Khadafi issued a joint statement after a 36-hour conference at Hassi Messaoud, administrative center of Algeria's southern oil fields, pledging their countries to rush to each other's help if their revolutionary regimes were threatened.
It amounted to Libya's promise to stand by Algeria in its all-out attempt to prevent Morocco from taking over Spanish Sahara in Northwest Africa. Spain already has surrendered virtual control to Moroccan troops and civil servants in the territory which contains some of the world's richest phosphate deposits.
Government officials said Algerian armed forces have strengthened their garrisons throughout areas bordering on Morocco. The Foreign Ministry has informed all foreign embassies their diplomats were henceforth banned from travel in the border zones.
Shortly upon his return from Hassi Messaoud to Algiers, Boumedienne received an urgent message from Moroccan King Hassan II, brought by Moroccan Deputy Foreign Minister Moulay Ahmed Cherkaoui. Its contents were not disclosed.
Government officials said the Algerian-backed Polisario Front movement in the Spanish Sahara would soon proclaim the territory's independence. Algeria, Libya and their allies would then grant the anti-Moroccan government recognition, they indicated.

Fires Take 11,800 Lives In America

BOSTON (AP) — Fire claimed about 11,800 lives in the United States in 1975, and the value of property lost went over the $4 billion mark, according to a preliminary report Monday by the National Fire Protection Association.
The fire deaths, including about 6,800 in dwelling fires, were an increase of about 200 over 1974 fatalities.
The association estimated the property losses at $4.4 billion, a sharp increase over the $3.8 billion total in 1974. The association said inflation only partially accounted for the increase over last year.
The worst death-causing fire was Jan. 31 when two tankers collided on the Delaware River at Marcus Hook, Pa., killing 25.
The largest property losses from fire this year were the Feb. 27 blaze in a New York City telephone exchange, and the March 22 fire at the Brown's Ferry nuclear power plant in Chattanooga, Tenn. The loss in each fire was estimated at over $70 million.

I agree with what you write about old people making use of community centers and recreational programs that have been organized for senior citizens.
"When I was growing up we were taught that it was good to help others. Even though I am old and have to use a cane to help me get on and off the buses, I go every other week to visit a paraplegic young man who is the son of one of my long-deceased friends.
"He enjoys my visits so much that I wish I were strong enough to make the trip to see him more often. Also, it does me a great deal of good to get out and go visiting. He is stimulating and we talk about all kinds of things.
"I like to think that we enrich each other's lives by giving and receiving these visits, and I recommend visiting as a good way for any old person who is in average health but too lonely to feel needed and useful. By visiting we give as well as receive."

Puerto Rico — This is the morning language session. I try to force the waiter into Spanish so I can practice. He tries to force me into English. So he can practice.
I have my coffee beside a surf that comes in like powdered sugar poured on a bright blue bowl.
The coco palms bend exactly as advertised by the Puerto Rico Development Board. The golden papaya throbs with Vitamin C. A few bars of "Granada" and we close up on waiter pouring coffee:
"Tiene el azucar?"
"Yes, sir, the sugar ees on the table."
"Muchas gracias."
"Enjoy the breakfast, sir."

Whether you speak Spanish or English, Puerto Rican talk is sprinkled with "Okay."
The shuttle bus operator fires a burst of Spanish into the telephone. Winds it up with "Okay? Okay!"
Distances on the local map and sign posts were put up in kilometers. Then the speed-limit signs went up in miles-per-hour.
There's some local dialect. A bus is a "guagua." It's the way the first horns sounded, a friend explained to me. "Wah wah."
The bus stop is marked: "Parada de Guaguas."
Americans who live here simply jam on the Spanish. They throw it at taxi drivers and waiters, maids and bellboys and grocery clerks.
"If he can, a Puerto Rican will answer you in English, anyway," said an American friend as we picked up a taxi in San Juan. "But if you don't speak Spanish, you won't learn. If they answer you right in English, at least you know you were speaking correct Spanish."
"Es correcto, no?" he said, including the taxi driver.

"Yes, sir. That ees correct," said the driver.
"Another thing," he said, "if you get trapped into English, sometimes the Puerto Rican doesn't understand you. But he won't say so. He just rides along, hoping you'll drop some other hint so he can backspace and pick up what you're talking about."
"No es verdad?" he said to the driver.
"You bet," said the driver over his shoulder. "Okay."

The Puerto Rico Spanish is more rolling than the Spanish of Spain. The endings are almost lost. "Parada" comes out pretty much like "para'a."
For some months in rural Spain I fought a losing battle trying to get a hamburger. I tried "carne picada" — chopped meat.
I tried "albondiga" — usually applied to fish and meaning something that comes out like a fish ball.
I drew diagrams for attentive chefs. I explained the great American hamburger so well, so deliciously, that I had to stop and dry my mouth with a napkin.
I made myself drool but never touched the culinary heart of Spain.

I turned this all over to a Puerto Rican baby sitter. A bilingual girl. They know what a hamburger is here all right. But I wanted it without a bun. I didn't know the word for bun and I thought I would blow it with the chef.
I explained all this to her. She simply picked up the phone and said: "Hamburger sin bun. Okay?"
"Sin" means "without." Simple. Okay?

COMMENT: I think that under the circumstances you are not doing badly. You write the above letter, which indicates that you perceive your problem in a realistic way, and you are already exploring alternatives, such as getting a job, even though you are not yet ready to do so.

Losing a loved one is always tragic and traumatic, and I think a sudden, unexpected loss of a man his age, as in your case, is particularly difficult to deal with. Three months is not a very long time to allow yourself to get used to your loss. Trite though it may be to say it, time will help heal your grievous wound.

I also believe that you have one or two friends or close relatives who will give you help if you ask for it. Don't just assume that they know how lonely and lost you feel. Tell them, and ask them to do some things with you that will get you out of the house.

Gradually, if you persist, you will find that your interest in things outside yourself will revive. Once your active interest in living is rekindled, then it will be time to begin to plan for the future.

There's a wonderful quotation I found not long ago that is appropriate for you. "He feels his chain the lightest who does not drag but carries it."

From the fact of your letter I feel that you are ready to carry your chain and thus lighten the burden of it. Good luck to you.

Spanish is the mother tongue in Puerto Rico. But every Puerto Rican tries to be bilingual. It produces some strange marriages of the languages.

Missouri forward Jim Kennedy starts on a fast break around Kansas State guard Chuckie Williams (10) during the Tigers' 86-66 win over the Wildcats in the semifinals of the Big Eight tournament.

Tigers, Kansas Lay Claim To Big Eight Tourney Title

By VIRGIL PARKER

Kansas City — Missouri and Kansas, which have made a habit of winning the Big Eight Conference Pre-Season Basketball Tournament will be after another title Tuesday night.

Before an alltime Kemper Arena crowd of 16,858 fans Monday evening, defending tourney champion Kansas topped Colorado, 70-50, after Missouri manhandled pre-meet favorite Kansas State, 86-66.

Missouri and Kansas have claimed the last five tourney crowns. Kansas won last year and in 1970, while Missouri claimed the title in 1971-72 & '73. The standing room only mob topped the previous arena record of 16,806 set earlier this season at a KC Kings-Chicago Bulls pro cage clash.

As a result of the nightcap action of Monday's four-game session — Oklahoma State easily subdued Iowa State, 88-71, and Nebraska romped past Oklahoma, 75-53, in afternoon games — Kansas State coach Jack Hartman will have to wait at least another day for his 100th victory as a Wildcat mentor.

Missouri, paced by an impressive 6-9 freshman named Stan Ray and hard-charging forward Jim Kennedy, never trailed in dumping K-State for its first time in six games.

It was the offensive backboard play of Ray and Kennedy which made the difference.

While the Wildcats seldom had more than one offensive chance, the Missouri front line tallied 24 points by the tubful.

"Our kids played with real intensity," Missouri coach Norm Stewart observed. "We shot well and played very good defense."

Hartman said the offensive backboard play was the big difference. "We got beat by a real good basketball team."

Missouri really capitalized on their inside scoring. Their big kids stormed the boards and put it back in. They could have played with anybody tonight. Missouri jumped to a 5-0 lead at the outset and was never headed. The Wildcats were limited to just three fielders in the first 10 minutes as Missouri took a whopping 20-6 advantage. K-State pulled within eight at intermission, 37-29, and made a serious run to get into contention at the outset of the second half. The Cats narrowed the margin to just four at 43-39, but that was as close as they got.

Ray and Kennedy took charge of the boards — tipped in four missed shots in a three-minute stretch — and Missouri was suddenly safely in front by 20 points.

Colorado, 2-5 on the season

coming into the tourney, stayed with Kansas until late in the second half.

The Buffs never led — except for an early 4-2 edge — yet trailed by just a single point, 14-13, after eight minutes.

The Jayhawks rattled off six straight points to take a 20-13 lead and the two clubs played on even terms the rest of the half. Kansas led by six at intermission, 34-28.

Ted Owens' Kansas club kept inching in front in the second stanza, but couldn't manage its first 10-point spread until midway through the frame.

It was only when trailing by 12 in the final five minutes of play — when Colorado tried to pressure on defense — that the Jayhawks pulled away.

Kansas managed to break through the full court press for a series of easy baskets to take its biggest lead at the very end.

Winless Iowa State faces Oklahoma in the first game Tuesday afternoon, while Colorado and K-State meet in the other daytime matchup.

Nebraska and Oklahoma State tip off at 7:05 for the consolation championship (5th place), while Kansas and Missouri battle for the title in the nightcap.

Kansas City — Cornhusker coach Joe Cipriano's Nebraska basketball team returned to its winning ways in Kemper Arena here Monday afternoon with a 75-53 victory over Oklahoma in the second round of the 30th annual Big Eight Conference pre-season basketball tournament.

"That's more like the way we played in winning the Roadrunner Classic in New Mexico and at Vanderbilt," Cipriano observed after the game.

"I thought we gave the effort in the first game of this tournament (a 69-66 loss to Kansas Saturday night) but our mind just wasn't with it."

"The kids played good defense today and that had a lot to do with the outcome of this game. To compare," Cipriano added, "the defensive play was just as good as at New Mexico, but the offense was lacking."

Nebraska never trailed the Sooners, although the contest was tied at 2-2 and 10-10 in the early going.

Eight first-half turnovers kept the Huskers from taking complete charge before intermission, however.

A six-point bulge dwindled to two on three occasions before guard Brian Banks and center Larry Cox combined for 10 points. Oklahoma was limited to just a free throw and one basket as Nebraska moved out in front, 33-19, with four minutes left in the first half.

The Huskers led by 11 at intermission, 35-24. Cox led the way with 10 counters.

Midway through the second stanza, Nebraska pushed the bulge to 20 for the first time at 53-33. The two clubs played on even terms the rest of the way. Nebraska's biggest lead was 24 at 73-49 and 75-51 near the end.

"We pressured on defense the entire way," Cipriano noted. "Maybe we could have relieved the pressure the last few minutes, but we wanted to maintain the tempo and keep our kids in the frame of mind of playing good defense all the way."

Cipriano called Oklahoma "a sound ball club that is well coached, but young."

While Cox led the Husker scoring with 19, Jerry Fort followed with 14 and Steve Willis also reached double figures with 11.

"Larry played extremely well," Cipriano said. "He's working inside, going to the boards and playing sound defense."

Cox hit 7-8 field goal tries, while Fort had a disappointing 7-16.

"Jerry hasn't been shooting too well lately," Cipriano said. "People are playing him differently — double teaming him. He's going to have to learn to adjust. He can't just keep trying to dribble through two people all the time."

Nebraska earned a berth in Tuesday night's consolation finals where they will meet Oklahoma State, which bounced Iowa State, 88-71, in an earlier afternoon game Monday.

Iowa State set a dubious school record by losing its ninth game in a row. The Cyclones were hurt when sharpshooting Hercle Ivy was sidelined after the first five minutes with a cut inside the lower lid of his left eye and was taken to the hospital for treatment.

OSU held a slip two-point edge with just a minute left in the first half, but then pulled out to a 42-36 intermission lead and was never threatened.

We played as well as we could for the first 39 minutes," Iowa State coach Ken Trickey observed, "but we're not going to be effective without Ivy. The big thing is carelessness and mental mistakes."

A crowd of 5,181 turned out for the afternoon action, far short of the Big Eight record crowd of 10,142 which viewed Saturday night's second first-round session.

What does it take to put Lincoln into a holiday basketball tournament mood?

Maybe the answer is another all-Lincoln final Tuesday night at Johnson Gym as young, but aggressive Lincoln High (3-2) battles unbeaten Southeast (5-0) at 7:30 p.m.

Southeast advanced to the championship via 49-48 win over Fremont before an estimated 1,200 Monday afternoon fans.

If those two teams thought Johnson Gym was a ghost town, they should have been there Monday night.

Lincoln High achieved a 63-48 victory over Papillion with less than 1,000 in attendance. The Links' band didn't even bother to show up.

The tournament is following the same script as last weekend's holiday event at East High. Fans finally showed up when East and Northeast were matched in the finals.

"The fur ought to fly again with two city teams going at each other," Lincoln High coach Alden Johnson said after his club exploded for 40 second half points to bury the Monarchs.

"We'll have to play an awful lot better to beat Southeast," he said, shaking his head over 21 turnovers. "We played good defense, but we had way too many mental errors. We were just careless."

At least the Links could afford to be careless. They were that much in command during the second half after a lackluster 23-14 first half.

Southeast never got that luxury. The Knights, playing what coach Wally McNaught described as "too individual on both offense and defense," were pressed all the way by Fremont.

Only when Jeff Raffety's 15-foot jump shot rimmed in and out with two seconds left for Fremont did Southeast breathe relief. The game failed to follow the Knights' much easier 52-40 time against Fremont earlier this month.

"We never play too far apart," McNaught said of the Southeast-Fremont series. "It's almost a commandment in our schedule. We never draw away from them and they never draw away from us."

Southeast took a beating on the boards and in teamwork. "It seemed like we get past the 10-second line, throw one pass and shoot an 18-footer," McNaught observed.

"That's an offense we never work on in practice," he added. "You can get that shot any time you want it. We also played individual defense. Everyone was watching his own man instead of the ball and his man."

Fremont was making six, seven, eight or nine passes before taking a shot," McNaught said. "They took control and we never changed the tempo."

Southeast led, 48-42 with 2:06 remaining, but the hustling Tigers finally pulled even at 48-48 on Mark Legband's 15-foot jump shot with 36 seconds left.

Dave Griffin, Southeast's senior 6-7 center, then cashed the front end of a one-and-one free throw situation with 17 seconds left to give the Knights a 49-48 advantage.

Fremont called timeout with 13 seconds remaining to plot strategy. "We just ran the weave and were hoping to get Legband or Raffety open somewhere out there," Fremont coach Al Bahe said.

"To be very honest," he added, "we got quite confused and didn't get anyone set up. We can't do enough things in pressure situations yet."

"This was a typical Southeast-Fremont game," Bahe said. "They're always or danged near always in the 40's. I just hope we can improve and come back without getting down."

Mike Carroll, a 6-4 senior, led Southeast's attack with 14 points. Griffin, saddled with foul trouble early in the third quarter, finished with 12. Legband's 18 paced Fremont.

Lincoln High didn't warm up its shooting iron until the second half. But after regenerating, the Links finished with four of their five starters in double scoring totals. The other starter had nine.

Jerry Heckman, a 6-5 junior playing despite an injured leg, led the balanced scoring with 15 points. Charlie Metzger hit 13 points and Nathan Woods and Russ Shepard each registered 12 points.

Papillion managed only five field goals in the first half against the Links' hustling zone defense and never recovered.

"I was pleased with our defense," Johnson said, "but we still haven't shown what I would call real poise. That's what we need more than anything against Southeast."

Costly Mistake?

A misdirected basket in the second half might have cost the Papillion girls a shot at the title game.

Papillion, carrying a 20-17 halftime lead, took the second half tip and raced down the court, only to score a basket for Lincoln High. The Links won the 1-80 Holiday Tournament first round game, 36-34.

Lincoln High took the momentum from there and outscored the Monarchs 19-14 in the second half for the finals berth. The Lincoln team was plagued by turnovers, giving up the ball 20 times during the game.

Robin Hruby was the lead scorer for the Links with nine, while three Papillion girls hit double figures. Donna Beezley, Cheryl Zelasney and Kim Mostek each contributed 10 points. Only one other Monarch got on the board.

Lincoln High got scoring from eight of its players, with Rachel Hildman adding eight.

Lincoln High will play the Lincoln Southeast team, which earlier defeated Bellevue, 37-19, in the finals game Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. Papillion and Bellevue meet in the consolation game at 1:30 p.m. in Johnson Gym.

Balanced Scoring

A balanced scoring attack netted the Lincoln Southeast girls team a 37-19 win over Bellevue. Kelley O'Neal led the Knights with eight points, followed by JoAnn Griffin with seven and Pam Van Neste with six. All nine Southeast girls who entered the game added to the Knights' total.

Evonna Myers led the scoring attack for Bellevue, followed by Debbie O'Hara with seven.

Jackson's Perfect Game Has Some Poetic Justice

By BOB MOYER

Steve Jackson got it right the second time around.

As a result, he became the third Lincoln bowler to record a 300 game during 1975 fall league play. Previously, Mike Kunke and Paul Portische had accomplished the feat. All three bowlers shot their perfect games in the Sunday Morning League at Plaza.

Earlier in the year Jackson had recorded 12 strikes in a row in one game, but failed to get a 300 because he fouled on one of the shots.

In addition he has had several games with six, seven or eight strikes to begin with and two years ago had 10 strikes in a row but missed on his 11th shot.

So there was some poetic justice to his getting the 300, even though he had to rely on two Brooklyn strikes and a light mixer hit to get the game.

"Actually, I think I've bowled better games," said Jackson. "I guess I'd been close enough before that this time the odds just went in my favor."

Little fiddling Jackson had little fiddling of a 300 after starting off with a 140 game.

Steve Jackson

"I had some strikes the first game but was missing spares and leaving the 10 pin," said Jackson. "I adjusted my ball speed though and then I quit leaving the 10 pin."

But because of the 140 game, Jackson said he didn't really think he would shoot 300.

"I wasn't thinking I would get it until the 10th frame," he said. "I kept thinking I would probably miss somewhere along the line."

"I think it helped me a lot that I wasn't thinking about the 300. That probably was the difference between getting it Sunday and not getting it before. I just had the right frame of mind this time."

En route to the 300, Jackson had shaky moments in the sixth and seventh frames.

"I threw the ball badly in the sixth frame, but got lucky and carried a Brooklyn," he said. "In the seventh frame, I over-compensated and left the ball light of the head pin, but I got lucky again and it carried."

Ball Got Heavy

"After that the shots were all in the pocket until the 12th frame when the ball got a little heavy and I got lucky and carried another Brooklyn," he said.

"After it was over I was just in a daze," Jackson added. "I've been close so often before, I just figured I'd never get it."

Jackson shot 192 following the 300 for a 632 series and then had 245 for the fourth game in the league.

A right-hander, Jackson said he was bowling between the first and second arrows on lanes seven and eight.

His best average this year is 208 and he is averaging over 200 or better in four leagues, three at Plaza and one at Briarpark.

Princeton Stymies Alabama

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI)

Senior guard Armond Hill scored 20 points Monday night to lead Princeton to a 61-50 upset victory over previously unbeaten and seventh-ranked Alabama in the opening round of the Maryland Invitational Tournament.

In the other game, All-America guard John Lucas scored 21 points to lead the second-ranked Maryland Terps past Seton Hall, 104-69. Maryland will meet Princeton in Tuesday night's championship game, while Alabama plays Seton Hall in the consolation match.

Princeton, now 5-2, used its deliberate offense to open a 29-20 halftime lead and never allowed the Crimson Tide, now 6-1, to gain the lead in the second half.

Junior swingman T. R. Dunn led Alabama with 16 points, while senior center Leon Douglas added 15.

Douglas canned a four-foot jump shot with 1:37 to close the Princeton lead to 58-55, but Pete Malloy shot one free throw and Mickey Steuwer added two more seconds later to extend the lead to an insurmountable six points.

Douglas' basket with six seconds remaining closed the gap to 61-59, but Princeton successfully ran the clock out to save the win.

Lucas scored 15 of his points in the first half as Maryland, running a fast break offense and playing good defense, shot to a 45-29 intermission lead over Seton Hall. The Terps outscored the Pirates 22-4 in the first six and one half minutes of the second half to sew up their eighth straight win.

Maryland Surprises Florida, 13-0

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)

The Maryland Terrapins thought they had something to prove in Monday night's Gator Bowl football game.

Although the Terps had won the Atlantic Coast Conference championship and posted their best record (8-2-1) in 20 years, a lot of people in this area had expressed disappointment that Maryland was chosen as the bowl opponent for the 14th-ranked Florida Gators.

The Terps gave them a lot more than that to be disappointed about Monday night when they handed the Gators their first shutout in 55 games in a 13-0 upset.

Indiana Leader

By The Associated Press

The powerful Indiana Hoosiers continued their stranglehold on the top spot in The Associated Press' major college basketball poll Tuesday, rolling up all but two of the possible first-place votes cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

The Hoosiers, in first place for the entire college basketball season were checked off first on 60 ballots, taking the runnerup spot on the two dissenting cards.

Indiana, 8-0, totaled 1,236

points out of a possible 1,240 after easy victories over Columbia and Manhattan last week.

"We just came here ready to play and we just killed them," said Maryland defensive guard Paul Divo, who set the tone of the game in the opening minutes when he recovered a fumble in Florida territory.

"We just played terrible," said Florida coach Doug Dickey. "We did not execute anything well at all it was very frustrating. The harder we tried, the worse we played."

The fired-up Terp defense blunted the Gator offense and fullback Steve Atkins kept the Gator defense off balance.

The Terrapins seven-point underdogs, intercepted three Florida passes, turning two of them into scores, and Atkins rushed for 127 yards on 22 carries to enable Maryland to control the ball in the rain-plagued game.

The Terrapins scored the game's only touchdown with 8:45 gone in the first period on a 19-yard pass from quarterback Larry Dick to wide receiver Kim Hoover and Mike Sothko lacked field goals of 21 and 27 yards in the second and fourth periods, respectively.

Maryland's touchdown came after Kevin Benson intercepted a Florida pass at the Gator 44-yard line and Sothko's first field goal came after Mike Celensky intercepted a pass at the Terrapin 39 and returned it 22 yards with another 15 yards tacked on for a Gator personal foul.

Florida, which led the Southeastern Conference in total offense during a 9-2 season, was unable to get past midfield in the first half. The Gators drove to the Maryland 26 midway through the third period but threw a pass out of bounds on a fourth-and-2 play to turn the ball over to the Terrapins.

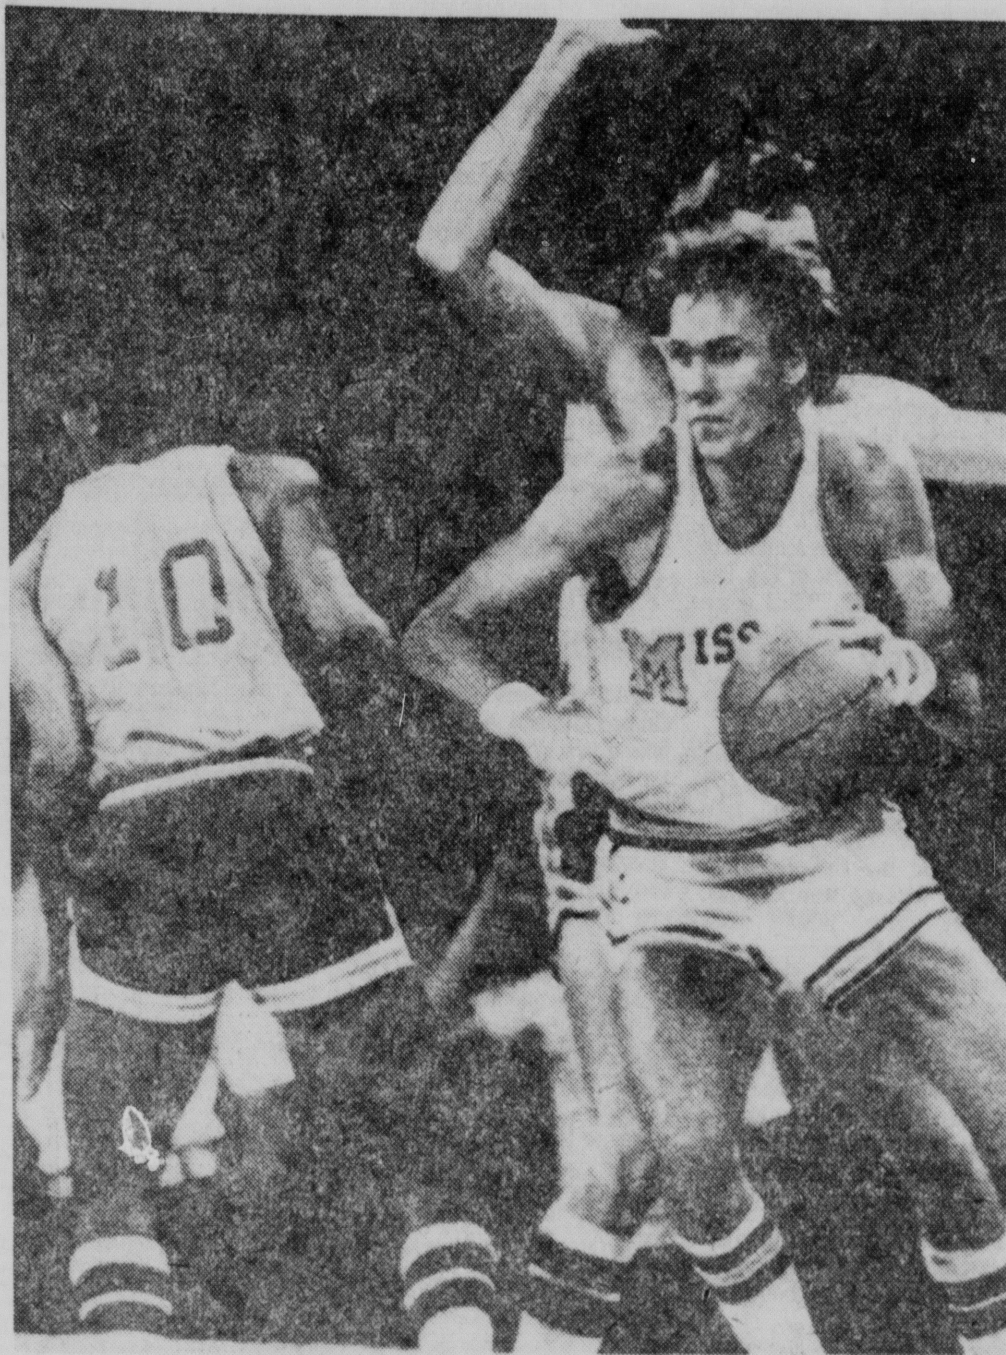

The Gators didn't get inside the Maryland 44 again until the closing seconds when second-string quarterback Jimmy Fisher carried them down to the Maryland 10 as time ran out.

Maryland's only really long drive was an 86-yard march that began late in the third period.

Maryland posted an 8-2-1 mark in the regular season while winning the Atlantic Coast Conference championship for the second straight year, and came into the Gator Bowl looking for its first post-season victory under four-year Coach Jerry Claiborne. Claiborne's Terrapins lost to Southeastern Conference teams in two previous bowls, to Georgia in the 1973 Peach Bowl and to Tennessee in last year's Liberty Bowl.

Tigers, Kansas Lay Claim To Big Eight Tourney Title

By VIRGIL PARKER

Kansas City — Missouri and Kansas, which have made a habit of winning the Big Eight Conference Pre-Season Basketball Tournament will be after another title Tuesday night.

Before an alltime Kemper Arena crowd of 16,858 fans Monday evening, defending tourney champion Kansas topped Colorado, 70-50, after Missouri manhandled pre-meet favorite Kansas State, 86-66.

Missouri and Kansas have claimed the last five tourney crowns. Kansas won last year and in 1970, while Mizzou claimed the title in 1971-72 & '73. The standing room only mob topped the previous arena record of 16,806 set earlier this season at a KC Kings-Chicago Bulls pro cage clash.

As a result of the nightcap action of Monday's four-game session — Oklahoma State easily subdued Iowa State, 88-71, and Nebraska romped past Oklahoma, 75-53, in afternoon games — Kansas State coach Jack Hartman will have to wait at least another day for his 100th victory as a Wildcat mentor.

Missouri, paced by an impressive 6-9 freshman named Stan Ray and hard-charging forward Jim Kennedy, never trailed in dumping K-State for its first time in six games.

It was the offensive backboard play of Ray and Kennedy which made the difference.

While the Wildcats seldom had more than one offensive chance, the Mizzou front line tallied tips by the tubful.

"Our kids played with real intensity," Mizzou coach Norm Stewart observed. "We shot well and played very good defense."

Hartman said the offensive backboard play was the big difference. "We got beat by a real good basketball team. Missouri really capitalized on their inside scoring. Their big kids stormed the boards and put it back in. They could have played with anybody tonight."

Missouri jumped to a 5-0 lead at the outset and was never headed. The Wildcats were limited to just three fielders in the first 10 minutes as Mizzou took a whopping 20-6 advantage. K-State pulled within eight at intermission, 37-29, and made a serious run to get into contention at the outset of the second half. The 'Cats narrowed the margin to just four at 43-39, but that was as close as they got.

Ray and Kennedy took charge of the boards — tipped in four missed shots in a three-minute stretch — and Mizzou was suddenly safely in front by 20 points.

Colorado, 2-5 on the season

coming into the tourney, stayed with Kansas until late in the second half.

The 'Buffs never led — except for an early 4-2 edge — yet trailed by just a single point, 14-13, after eight minutes.

The Jayhawks rattled off six straight points to take a 20-13 lead and the two clubs played on even terms the rest of the half. Kansas led by six at intermission, 34-28.

Ted Owens' Kansas club kept inching in front in the second stanza, but couldn't manage its first 10-point spread until midway through the frame. It was only when trailing by 12 in the final five minutes of play — when Colorado tried to pressure on defense — that the Jayhawks pulled away.

Kansas managed to break through the full court press for a series of easy baskets to take its biggest lead at the very end.

Winless Iowa State faces Oklahoma in the first game Tuesday afternoon, while Colorado and K-State meet in the other daytime matchup.

Nebraska and Oklahoma State tip off at 7:05 for the consolation championship (5th place), while Kansas and Missouri battle for the title in the nightcap.

Steve Jackson got it right the second time around.

As a result, he became the third Lincoln bowler to record a 300 game during 1975 fall league play. Previously, Mike Kunke and Paul Portsche had accomplished the feat. All three bowlers shot their perfect games in the Sunday Morning League at Plaza.

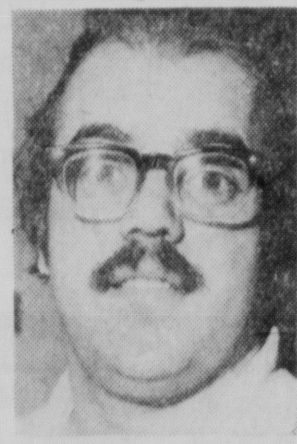

Earlier in the year Jackson had recorded 12 strikes in-a-row in one game, but failed to get a 300 because he fouled on one of the shots.

In addition he has had several games with six, seven or eight strikes to begin with and two years ago had 10 strikes in-a-row but missed on his 11th shot.

So there was some poetic justice to his getting the 300, even though he had to rely on two Brooklyn strikes and a light mixer hit to get the game.

"Actually, I think I've bowled better games," said Jackson. "I guess I'd been close enough before that this time the odds just went in my favor."

Little Inking
Jackson had little inking of a 300 after starting off with a 140 game.

Steve Jackson

"I had some strikes the first game but was missing spares and leaving the 10 pin," said Jackson. "I adjusted my ball speed though and then I quit leaving the 10 pin."

But because of the 140 game, Jackson said he didn't really think he would shoot 300.

"I wasn't thinking I would get it until the 10th frame," he said, "I kept thinking I would probably miss somewhere along the line."

"I think it helped me a lot that I wasn't thinking about the 300. That probably was the difference between getting it Sunday and not getting it before. I just had the right frame of mind this time."

En route to the 300, Jackson had shaky moments in the sixth and seventh frames.

"I threw the ball badly in the sixth frame, but got lucky and carried a Brooklyn," he said. "In the seventh frame, I overcompensated and left the ball light of the head pin, but I got lucky again and it carried."

Ball Got Heavy

"After that the shots were all in the pocket until the 12th frame when the ball got a little heavy and I got lucky and carried another Brooklyn," he said.

"After it was over I was just in a daze," Jackson added. "I've been close so often before, I just figured I'd never get it."

Jackson shot 192 following the 300 for a 632 series and then had 245 for the fourth game in the league.

A right-hander, Jackson said he was bowling between the first and second arrows on lanes seven and eight.

Princeton Stymies Alabama

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — Senior guard Armond Hill scored 20 points Monday night to lead Princeton to a 61-59 upset victory over previously unbeaten and seventh-ranked Alabama in the opening round of the Maryland Invitational Tournament.

In the other game, All-America guard John Lucas scored 21 points to lead the second-ranked Maryland Terps past Seton Hall, 104-69. Maryland will meet Princeton in Tuesday night's championship game, while Alabama plays Seton Hall in the consolation match.

Princeton, now 5-2, used its deliberate offense to open a 29-20 halftime lead and never allowed the Crimson Tide, now 6-1, to gain the lead in the second half.

Junior swingman T. R. Dunn led Alabama with 16 points, while senior center Leon Douglas added 15.

Douglas canned a four-foot jump shot with 1:37 to close the Princeton lead to 58-55, but Pete Malloy shot one free throw and Mickey Steuerer added two more seconds later to extend the lead to an insurmountable six points.

Douglas' basket with six seconds remaining closed the gap to 61-59, but Princeton successfully ran the clock out to save the win.

Lucas scored 15 of his points in the first half as Maryland, running a fast break offense and playing good defense, shot to a 45-29 intermission lead over Seton Hall. The Terps outscored the Pirates 22-4 in the first six and one half minutes of the second half to sew up their eighth straight win.

Maryland Surprises Florida, 13-0

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — The Maryland Terrapins thought they had something to prove in Monday night's Gator Bowl football game.

Although the Terps had won the Atlantic Coast Conference championship and posted their best record (8-2-1) in 20 years, a lot of people in this area had expressed disappointment that Maryland was chosen as the bowl opponent for the 14th-ranked Florida Gators.

The Terps gave them a lot more than that to be disappointed about Monday night when they handed the Gators their first shutout in 55 games in a 13-0 upset.

Indiana Leader

By The Associated Press

The powerful Indiana Hoosiers continued their stranglehold on the top spot in The Associated Press' major college basketball poll Tuesday, rolling up all but two of the possible first-place votes cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

The Hoosiers, in first place for the entire college basketball season, were checked off first on 60 ballots, taking the runnerup spot on the two dissenting cards.

Indiana, 8-0, totaled 1,236

"We just came here ready to play and we just killed them," said Maryland defensive guard Paul Divito, who set the tone of the game in the opening minutes when he recovered a fumble in Florida territory.

"We just played terrible," said Florida coach Doug Dickey. "We did not execute anything well at all...it was very frustrating. The harder we tried, the worse we played."

The fired-up Terp defense blunted the Gator offense and fullback Steve Atkins kept the Gator defense off balance.

The Terrapins, seven-point underdogs, intercepted three Florida passes, turning two of them into scores, and Atkins rushed for 127 yards on 22 carries to enable Maryland to control the ball in the rain-plagued game.

The Terrapins scored the game's only touchdown with 8:45 gone in the first period on a 19-yard pass from quarterback Larry Dick to wide receiver Kim Hoover and Mike Sochko kicked field goals of 20 and 27 yards in the second and fourth periods, respectively.

Maryland's touchdown came after Kevin Benson intercepted a Florida pass at the Gator 44-yard line and Sochko's first field goal came after Mike Ceilensky intercepted a pass at the Terrapin 39 and returned it 22 yards, with another 15 yards tacked on for a Gator personal foul.

Florida, which led the Southeastern Conference in total offense during a 9-2 season, was unable to get past midfield in the first half. The Gators drove to the Maryland 26 midway through the third period, but threw a pass out of bounds on a fourth-and-2 play to turn the ball over to the Terrapins.

The Gators didn't get inside the Maryland 44 again until the closing seconds when second-string quarterback Jimmy Fisher carried them down to the Maryland 10 as time ran out.

Maryland's only really long drive was an 86-yard march that began late in the third period.

Maryland posted an 8-2-1 mark in the regular season while winning the Atlantic Coast Conference championship for the second straight year, and came into the Gator Bowl looking for its first post-season victory under four-year Coach Jerry Claiborne. Claiborne's Terrapins lost to Southeastern Conference teams in two previous bowls, to Georgia in the 1973 Peach Bowl and to Tennessee in last year's Liberty Bowl.

A Sports Roundup

HOCKEY

Ken Dryden, goalie for the Montreal Canadiens and also an attorney, Monday filed a $1.5 million federal suit against the New York Mets and Anheuser-Busch, Inc., claiming they unlawfully used his photograph in their advertising. The National Hockey League's top goaltender contends his photograph that appeared on the cover of Sports Illustrated magazine Feb. 14, 1972, has been used in beer ads and Mets baseball programs at Shea Stadium without his consent.

The World Hockey Association's Minnesota Fighting Saints topped Dryden, filing a $6.4 million lawsuit Monday against the National Hockey League and one of its clubs, the Kansas City Scouts. Th lawsuit, which is a counterclaim to a suit filed earlier by the Scouts, contends that the Scouts and the NHL contractually interfered with Saints player Henry Boucha, thus violating a consent decree between the two leagues.

FOOTBALL

Pittsburgh Steelers coach Chuck Noll knows that his No. 1 quarterback, Terry Bradshaw, will not scramble much on his injured right knee Sunday against Oakland, but Noll still plans to use Bradshaw for the entire game. If the balding, blond passer is injured further, however, Terry Hanratty — and not Joe Gilliam — will be Bradshaw's replacement, Noll said.

Ted Brown, North Carolina State's novice running back who has been compared to Archie Griffin, may miss Wednesday night's Peach Bowl in Atlanta because of a hip injury. The 5-11, 180-pound freshman's statistics are better than Griffin's numbers were his first year at Ohio State. Brown has rushed for 913 yards and scored 13 touchdowns this season.

A funeral has been scheduled Tuesday for the Rev. Dallas Tarkenton Sr., father of Minnesota Vikings quarterback Fran Tarkenton. The senior Tarkenton died Sunday while watching his son on television.

BASEBALL

A new lawyer for Kelly Ann Martin, 23, daughter of New York Yankee manager Billy Martin, has requested that the woman's preliminary hearing in Barranquilla, Colombia, be reopened. She was arrested Nov. 16 at an airline terminal with two bags of cocaine strapped to her legs. She says she thought she was carrying a rare medicine.

A group of major league owners will meet Tuesday to review the financial plight of the San Francisco Giants. The National League agreed to extend financial aid to the club's owner, Horace Stoneham, until Tuesday.

OTHER SPORTS

The Mavericks of the University of Nebraska at Omaha have been ranked 15th in the Associated Press poll of the top 15 basketball teams in the NCAA's college division. The Mavericks are undefeated in eight games.

Moses Malone is likely to be drafted by the New Orleans Jazz Tuesday in the National Basketball Association's special draft to determine negotiating rights for five American Basketball Association players whose clubs folded earlier this season. The other ABA players to be drafted are Mark Olberding, Skip Wise, Mel Bennett and Charlie Jordan. A temporary injunction preventing the NBA from signing the players was overturned.

Chuck Neimas, Big Eight commissioner and chairman of the NCAA's International Relations Committee, will be a witness during special White House commission hearings Jan. 8 and 9 in Los Angeles. President Ford appointed the commission in an attempt to end the jurisdictional feud between the U.S. Olympic Committee, NCAA and the Amateur Athletic Union.

Soviet newspaper Tass reported Monday that Billie Jean King will lead a contingent of top American tennis players to compete against Russian stars next March. Matches will be played in Moscow and then in Philadelphia, Cleveland and Indianapolis. Alex Metreveli will lead Russia's six-player group.

Minnesota Vikings' quarterback Fran Tarkenton has a dazed expression on his face following his team's loss to Dallas in the NFC semifinal playoff game Sunday. Tarkenton's father died while watching his son play on TV.

Tarkenton Given NFC Player Title

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sunday may have been a last hurrah for several of the aging Minnesota Vikings but you can be sure Fran Tarkenton will be back for a few more champagne celebrations... be they individual or team.

Tarkenton, who won the first passing title of his 15-year career this season, pushed Johnny Unitas off the top of the list in three major lifetime passing categories this year and is just one category away from asserting himself as the greatest quarterback in the history of the game.

Tarkenton completed 273 passes in 425 attempts for a 64 per cent completion rate, an NFC high 2,994 yards and an NFL best of 25 touchdowns last season to take over the all-time lead from Unitas in passes attempted, passes completed and touchdowns.

For his performance this year in leading the Vikings to a 12-2 record and their sixth National Football Conference Central Division title in the last seven seasons, Tarkenton has been named United Press International's player of the year in the NFC.

Tarkenton was the overwhelming choice of the UPI selection panel, polling 27 of a possible 39 votes. The panel is the big defensive tackle of Thursday's night's Orange Bowl clash with Michigan.

The Big Eight, which has claimed football superiority since its top three clubs were ranked the nation's three best in 1971, posted a 28-4 record against nonconference opposition this season.

But since then, Nebraska has fallen 17-14 to Arizona State in the Fiesta Bowl, Kansas fell 33-19 to Pittsburgh in the Sun Bowl and Colorado gave up a two-touchdown lead in losing 38-21 to Texas in the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl.

Michigan Coach Bo Schembacher defended the Big Eight's tarnished reputation, saying, "They were good enough to get in bowl games. It's kind of evident they had better teams than about any conference in the country."

He said he didn't see the Orange Bowl game as a match to determine Big Eight or Big Ten superiority adding, "This game

Kearney State In Title Game

KEARNEY, Neb. (AP)—Two high scoring teams, Kearney and Wisconsin LaCrosse, will face each other for the championship of the Kearney State Holiday basketball tournament Tuesday after taking first round victories Monday.

Kearney rolled up a 108-79 victory over Southwest Minnesota and LaCrosse pounded Colorado College 110-77.

Kearney vaulted to a 16-2 lead and was ahead of the Golden Mustangs 50-38 at the half on the 27-point outpour of Loren Killion and 18 points by Tim Mohanna.

Larry Halberson of the taller LaCrosse squad shot 23 points as the Indians led throughout.

Russian Wings Soar In Ice Win

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Soviet Wings, bolstered by a front line borrowed from another Russian team, buried the NHL Pittsburgh Penguins in a barrage of first-period goals Monday night and went on for a 7-4 exhibition hockey victory in the first game of a four game tour of North America.

The Wings, one of two teams touring NHL cities, took a 5-0 lead under the leadership of three players borrowed for the tour from the Soviet Team Spartak; Victor Schalimov, Aleksander Yakushev and Vladimir Shadrin, who figured in on five of the winners' goals.

Schalimov, Yakushev and Shadrin each scored a goal and Shadrin and Schalimov had three assists each, including assists on two goals scored by defenseman Yuri Liapkin.

Penguin goals were scored by Pierre Larouche, Ron Schock, Barry Wilkins and Lew Morrison.

The victory made it two straight for the two touring USSR teams.

The Soviets' top team, the Central Army team, defeated the New York Rangers, 7-3, in the first game of their four-game series Sunday night.

Oklahoma guard Terry Webb said, "To me, it means nothing. We're playing for the people of Oklahoma and ourselves. I would've liked to see Big Eight teams win, but that has no bearing on our preparation."

"When you start having doubts about the ability of your team, you're in trouble. And we don't have any doubts about ourselves."

But Soonier coach Barry Switzer, reflecting on the losses, said, "It makes us lonely."

Switzer said a rule cutting Big Eight freshmen scholarships from 45 to 30 has had an impact on the conference.

"I don't think the Big Eight will have the balance and the national prestige in the future that it has held," said Switzer. "Hopefully, Nebraska and Oklahoma can survive the scholarship limit."

Winner Wayne Meets Bellevue

WAYNE, Neb. (AP)—Wayne clipped Midland 94-65 Monday to take a first round victory in the 18th annual Wayne Invitational basketball tourney.

Wayne will play Bellevue Tuesday for the championship and Midland will take on Westmar of Iowa for the consolation game.

Wayne put pressure on the Warriors throughout and led all the way. John Remond scored 19 points and Rick Anderson 16.

Jeff Meyer led Midland with 14.

Wayne is 5-5 and Midland 3-7 for the season.

MIDLAND (65)

Hastings Downs Bethany, 80-53

Hastings, Neb. (AP) — Spurred by the shooting and passing of Doug Wolf, Hastings College moved out front with 7:45 left in the game Monday night to outscore Bethany College 80-53 in first round action of a Hastings holiday basketball tournament.

Wolf scored 12 of his total 16 points in second half to follow Pat Hodges' lead of 18 points for the Hastings Broncos.

Kurt White was top scorer for the Kansas team with 15, while Jerry Krone provided 12.

In an earlier game, Rockhurst College of Missouri downed Sioux Falls, 67-58.

Capitals Coach Leaves Position

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Milt Schmidt, the coach and general manager of the struggling Washington Capitals, resigned Monday night shortly after a 6-0 loss to the Montreal Canadiens.

"After many weeks, I finally made up my mind to resign as coach and general manager. All-in-all, perhaps a change is for the best and it would be a shot in the arm if someone else did take over," said Schmidt, whose club was 3-28-5 for the first half of this season.

Oklahoma's Davis Prepared For Tilt

Tuesday, December 30, 1975 The Lincoln Star 11

MIAMI (UPI) — Steve Davis has quarterbacked Oklahoma's devastating wishbone attack to a 31-1 record in his three years with the Sooners but he will finally get the chance to direct his team in a bowl game New Year's night.

That's when the second-ranked Sooners, just coming off an NCAA probation, battle fourth-ranked Michigan in the 42nd annual Orange Bowl. The game marks Oklahoma's first bowl appearance since Dec. 31, 1972, when the Sooners blanked Penn State, 14-0, in the Sugar Bowl.

In addition to being the Sooners' first bowl game in three years, it will also be their first time on national television since the probationary period began, and Davis says this is an added incentive.

"We'll have no trouble getting ready mentally for this game," the 5-11, 185-pound Davis said. "We want to be on the tube very badly. When you haven't been on TV before all those people for as long as we have, you're bound to be hungry."

But the thrill of a bowl is all the push Davis himself needs to get ready.

"I feel like a sophomore," he said. "I've never been to a bowl before."

Halfback Joe Washington and defensive linemen Leroy and Dewey Selmon made the trip to New Orleans for the last Sooners bowl game. Davis wasn't even on the roster that year.

But since taking over at quarterback his sophomore year, Davis has rushed for 2,058 yards and passed for another 1,973. He's scored 32 touchdowns rushing and thrown for 21. This season he's rushed for 512 yards and six touchdowns and passed for 438 more while throwing an average of only five passes per game.

With all the accolades Oklahoma has received, Davis acknowledges it hasn't been a good year for the Sooners.

"We lost a game. Our offense was spasmic. Great things were expected of us, yet we had to earn everything we got. We fumbled a lot."

"I think we got it all together against Missouri and Nebraska," he said. "I hope we can keep it together against Michigan."

While preparing for the Orange Bowl, the Sooners senior has also found time for other activities. Davis, an ordained Baptist minister, appeared Sunday at a local church and delivered a sermon.

Hayes Awarded Coaching Prize

Oklahoma City (AP) — Woody Hayes, whose Ohio State Buckeyes are only a Rose Bowl victory away from the national championship, was named Coach of the Year Monday by the Football Writers Association of America.

Balloting by some 600 members produced strong support for a record number of coaches. But Hayes won by an 80-56 margin over Bud Moore, whose first Kansas club was picked to finish near the bottom of the Big Eight but won seven games and pinned the only loss in the last three seasons on Oklahoma, 23-3.

Gil Krueger, who guided Northern Michigan from 0-10 in 1974 to the NCAA Division II title in 1975, was third with 53 votes.

Cross, a 6-4, 246-pound senior who has been called UCLA's best offensive lineman by his coach, would start against the Buckeyes. Cross has been hampered by an ankle sprain in Rose Bowl workouts.

"Randy's ankle is still sore," he said, "but he's the type of kid who can play with pain. Some players can and some can't. Randy's just the type that doesn't feel pain."

Central City, Aurora Victors

Central City — Senior Jeff Scholl scored 37 points Monday night to lead the Central City Bisons to a 63-56 win in the first round of the Central City Holiday Basketball Tournament.

In the other first-round game, Aurora defeated Superior 75-59, led by the 21 points of Steve Cranfill.

Central City 63, Centennial 56
Central City — Scholl 17, 10, 26-62

UCLA Hoping To Keep Top Spot From Buckeyes

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Only twice-beaten UCLA stands between No. 1-rated Ohio State and a national championship and the Bruins' Dick Vermeil admitted Monday that's put him in a quandary.

"I'd like to see that happen," Vermeil told a Rose Bowl news conference, "because I think they deserve it. And if you're going to lose, I'd rather lose to a coach like Woody Hayes. He's very much like my own father."

"But I also want UCLA to win on New Year's Day because my obligation is to my own football players. We want to leave the Rose Bowl with our heads high and I believe we can."

Hayes said his Buckeyes had been shooting to be the best in the country all season.

"You don't get to be 11-0 and not have any motivation," he said. "We'll just continue doing the same things we've been doing all season."

Archie Griffin and company will be appearing in their fourth straight Rose Bowl and the Buckeyes routed UCLA 41-20 during the regular season. But Hayes denied his players were taking the game lightly.

"I haven't seen any complacency at all," the Ohio State coach said. "None whatsoever. We've got great respect for UCLA. We know they're quite a bit better now than they were in October."

"Of course, I always figure we'll win. I never think any other way, although I always figure our games will be close. But it won't be easy against UCLA and there are a lot of ways you can lose."

Vermeil said that his premier running back, Wendell Tyler, was giving him cause for concern. A cast placed on Tyler's left wrist at the end of the regular season has been removed.

"To be honest with you," the UCLA mentor said, "Wendell is not the most secure ball handler in the world and he's looked less secure since his cast was removed."

Tyler, a fleet junior, suffered a cracked wrist against Stanford in UCLA's fifth game of the season, but he played with the injury and set a Bruin single-season rushing record of 1,216 yards.

In UCLA's Rose Bowl-clinching 25-22 win over University of Southern California Nov. 28, he fumbled four times, three of them on pichtouts from quarterback John Sciara.

Hayes was asked about UCLA's potent Veer attack and if the extra time a team gets to prepare for a bowl game would help the Buckeyes defense it better.

"It just might do that," he replied. "We don't see it in the Big Ten and we only got one week to get ready for it the first time."

"But, by the same token, UCLA doesn't get a chance to see that much of the option so maybe the extra time will help them."

Vermeil reported that starting strong side guard Randy

NFL Officials Under Fire Again

By Associated Press
From the obscurity of the National Football League's roster of officials, Jerry Bergman's name has sprung up again, right in the middle of another controversial call.

It was Bergman, a head linesman, who ruled Drew Pearson's dramatic catch of Roger Staubach's 50-yard touchdown pass to be legal in the game-turning play that moved the Dallas Cowboys to a 17-14 National Conference playoff victory over the Minnesota Vikings Sunday.

And it was Bergman who was the subject of some post-game criticism by Buffalo Owner Ralph Wilson three weeks ago that led to $5,000 fines for Wilson and Los Angeles Owner Carroll Rosenbloom, who felt obligated to agree with the Bills' boss.

Also fined by Commissioner Pete Rozelle at the same time were Oakland's Al Davis and Minnesota Coach Bud Grant, who muttered something about a million-dollar business being run by amateurs.

Grant couldn't believe it when no flags were thrown as Pearson and defender Nate Wright battled for Staubach's pass. But he did notice who the official was on the play.

"Very coincidentally, it happened to be Mr. Bergman," said

Grant. "Quite a coincidence."

"It was definitely interference," snapped the taciturn boss of the Vikings. Then, remembering that Article 9.1C of the NFL constitution forbids criticism of officials, Grant clammed up. "This is the only game where they hold a club over your head if you complain about the officiating," he said.

The NFL rulebook says interference may be called if any player hinders the progress of an eligible opponent in his attempt to reach the pass. When a pass is thrown, the defensive player has as much right to try for the ball as the offensive player.

"Once the ball the ball is in the air, both players may move for it," said Art McNally, the NFL's supervisor of officials. "Whether there is interference on the play depends on whether either player runs through the other to get to the ball or there is deliberate extension of an arm to push an opponent out."

What about contact between receiver and defender?

"If both men are making a play for the ball, you're going to get contact," McNally said. "Incidental or even strong contact doesn't mean a thing."

Dallas Coach Tom Landry viewed the game films Monday and said: "The call looked fine to me. It looked to me that the ball was a little underthrown and that both Nate Wright and Drew were coming back for it. It looked like Wright stumbled and came into Drew while he was falling down. Drew went for the ball, caught it and that was that. You had two officials within 10 yards of the play from different angles."

"We were both bumping," said Pearson.

"He pushed me," snapped Wright. "That's all I can say. He pushed me."

Later, Wright said he couldn't believe what happened. "I thought I had an interception," he said. "I had position. I wasn't thinking anything else. I felt myself pushed. I slipped forward and I tried to hold my balance. All of a sudden, I was lying on the ground. I never saw him catch the ball. The officials were holding their arms up in the air, signaling touchdown. I couldn't believe it. If Drew thinks I jostled him first, he's wrong. I never touched him."

Pearson had a somewhat different version.

"There was interference on the play," the Cowboy wide receiver said. "I didn't know if the official would call it. After the collision, I had the ball in my hands, but Wright knocked it loose as he was falling. The ball slipped out of my hands, but slid onto my right hip and I was able to grab it and hold it there."

"Then, in the end zone, I saw something fly through the air. I thought it was a yellow flag. I thought, 'Oh, no, he's calling the interference.'"

Had defensive interference been called, the touchdown also would not have counted and the ball would have been on the Minnesota five yard line.

Oklahoma's Davis Prepared For Tilt

MIAMI (UPI) — Steve Davis has quarterbacked Oklahoma's devastating wishbone attack to a 31-1 record in his three years with the Sooners but he will finally get the chance to direct his team in a bowl game New Year's night.

That's when the second-ranked Sooners, just coming off an NCAA probation, battle fourth-ranked Michigan in the 42nd annual Orange Bowl. The game marks Oklahoma's first bowl appearance since Dec. 31, 1972, when the Sooners blanked Penn State, 14-0, in the Sugar Bowl.

UCLA Hoping To Keep Top Spot From Buckeyes

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Only twice-beaten UCLA stands between No. 1-rated Ohio State and a national championship and the Bruins' Dick Vermeil admitted Monday that's put him in a quandary.

"I'd like to see that happen," Vermeil told a Rose Bowl news conference, "because I think they deserve it. And if you're going to lose, I'd rather lose to a coach like Woody Hayes. He's very much like my own father."

"But I also want UCLA to win on New Year's Day because my obligation is to my own football players. We want to leave the Rose Bowl with our heads high and I believe we can."

Hayes said his Buckeyes had been shooting to be the best in the country all season.

"You don't get to be 11-0 and not have any motivation," he said. "We'll just continue doing the same things we've been doing all season."

Archie Griffin and company will be appearing in their fourth straight Rose Bowl and the Buckeyes routed UCLA 41-20 during the regular season. But Hayes denied his players were taking the game lightly.

"I haven't seen any complacency at all," the Ohio State coach said. "None whatsoever. We've got great respect for UCLA. We know they're quite a bit better now than they were in October."

"Of course, I always figure we'll win. I never think any other way, although I always figure our games will be close. But it won't be easy against

In addition to being the Sooners' first bowl game in three years, it will also be their first time on national television since the probationary period began, and Davis says this is an added incentive.

"We'll have no trouble getting ready mentally for this game," the 5-11, 185-pound Davis said. "We want to be on the tube very badly. When you haven't been on TV before all those people for as long as we have, you're bound to be hungry."

But the thrill of a bowl is all the push Davis himself needs to get ready.

"I feel like a sophomore," he said. "I've never been to a bowl before."

Halfback Joe Washington and defensive linemen Leroy and Dewey Selmon made the trip to New Orleans for the last Sooners bowl game. Davis wasn't even on the roster that year.

But since taking over at quarterback his sophomore year, Davis has rushed for 2,058 yards and passed for another 1,973. He's scored 32 touchdowns rushing and thrown for 21. This season he's rushed for 512 yards and six touchdowns and passed for 438 more while throwing an average of only five passes per game.

With all the accolades Oklahoma has received, Davis acknowledges it hasn't been a good year for the Sooners.

"We lost a game. Our offense was spasmodic. Great things were expected of us, yet we had to earn everything we got. We fumbled a lot."

"I think we got it all together against Missouri and Nebraska," he said. "I hope we can keep it together against Michigan."

While preparing for the Orange Bowl, the Sooners senior has also found time for other activities. Davis, an ordained Baptist minister, appeared Sunday at a local church and delivered a sermon.

Hayes Awarded Coaching Prize

Oklahoma City (AP) — Woody Hayes, whose Ohio State Buckeyes are only a Rose Bowl victory away from the national championship, was named Coach of the Year Monday by the Football Writers Association of America.

Balloting by some 600 members produced strong support for a record number of coaches. But Hayes won by an 80-56 margin over Bud Moore, whose first Kansas club was picked to finish near the bottom of the Big Eight but won seven games and pinned the only loss in the last three seasons on Dec. 23-3.

Gil Krueger, who guided Northern Michigan from 0-10 in 1974 to the NCAA Division II title in 1975, was third with 53 votes.

Central City, Aurora Victors

Central City — Senior Jeff Scholl scored 37 points Monday night to lead the Central City Bisons to a 63-56 win in the first round of the Central City Holiday Basketball Tournament.

In the other first-round game, Aurora defeated Superior 75-59, led by the 21 points of Steve Cranfill.

Aurora will meet the Bisons Tuesday night for the championship, preceded by the consolation game.

NFL Officials Under Fire Again

By Associated Press
From the obscurity of the National Football League's roster of officials, Jerry Bergman's name has sprung up again, right in the middle of another controversial call.

It was Bergman, a head linesman, who ruled Drew Pearson's dramatic catch of Roger Staubach's 50-yard touchdown pass to be legal in the game-turning play that moved the Dallas Cowboys to a 17-14 National Conference playoff victory over the Minnesota Vikings Sunday.

And it was Bergman who was the subject of some post-game criticism by Buffalo Owner Ralph Wilson three weeks ago that led to $5,000 fines for Wilson and Los Angeles Owner Carroll Rosenbloom, who felt obligated to agree with the Bills' boss.

Also fined by Commissioner Pete Rozelle at the same time were Oakland's Al Davis and Minnesota Coach Bud Grant, who muttered something about a million-dollar business being run by amateurs.

Grant couldn't believe it when no flags were thrown as Pearson and defender Nate Wright battled for Staubach's pass. But he did notice who the official was on the play.

"Very coincidentally, it happened to be Mr. Bergman," said

Grant. "Quite a coincidence. 'It was definitely interference,' snapped the taciturn boss of the Vikings. Then, remembering that Article 9.1C of the NFL constitution forbids criticism of officials, Grant clammed up. 'This is the only game where they hold a club over your head if you complain about the officiating,' he said."

The NFL rulebook says interference may be called if any player hinders the progress of an eligible opponent in his attempt to reach the pass. When a pass is thrown, the defensive player has as much right to try for the ball as the offensive player.

"Once the ball the ball is in the air, both players may move for it," said Art McNally, the NFL's supervisor of officials. "Whether there is interference on the play depends on whether either player runs through the other to get to the ball or there is deliberate extension of an arm to push an opponent out."

What about contact between receiver and defender?

"If both men are making a play for the ball, you're going to get contact," McNally said. "Incidental or even strong contact doesn't mean a thing."

Dallas Coach Tom Landry viewed the game films Monday and said: "The call looked fine to me. It looked to me that the ball was a little underthrown and that both Nate Wright and Drew were coming back for it. It looked like Wright stumbled and came into Drew while he was falling down. Drew went for the ball, caught it and that was that. You had two officials within 10 yards of the play from different angles."

"We were both bumping," said Pearson.

"He pushed me," snapped Wright. "That's all I can say. He pushed me."

Later, Wright said he couldn't believe what happened.

"I thought I had an interception," he said. "I had position. I wasn't thinking anything else. I felt myself pushed. I slipped forward and I tried to hold my balance. All of a sudden, I was lying on the ground. I never saw him catch the ball. The officials were holding their arms up in the air, signaling touchdown. I couldn't believe it. If Drew thinks I jostled him first, he's wrong. I never touched him."

Pearson had a somewhat different version.

"There was interference on the play," the Cowboy wide receiver said. "I didn't know if the official would call it. After the collision, I had the ball in my hands, but Wright knocked it loose as he was falling. The ball slipped out of my hands, but slid onto my right hip and I was able to grab it and hold it there."

"Then, in the end zone, I saw something fly through the air. I thought it was a yellow flag. I thought, 'Oh, no, he's calling the interference.'"

Had defensive interference been called, the touchdown also would not have counted and the ball would have been on the Minnesota five yard line.

Drug Investigation Of Hefner Dropped By Justice Department

CHICAGO (AP) — A Justice Department investigation of Hugh Hefner, publisher of Playboy magazine and chief executive officer of Playboy Enterprises, Inc., found no evidence that Hefner or his associates used or distributed narcotics or "knowingly allowed it to be used," U.S. Atty. Samuel K. Skinner said Monday.

A spokesman for Hefner said the investigation had been dropped because of insufficient evidence and that Hefner learned of the decision Sunday in Los Angeles but had no comment.

The investigation was carried out by Drug Enforcement Administration agents who worked with Skinner's office and the Chicago Strike Force.

It was prompted by information received by Skinner's office alleging that Hefner "and several employees in the Playboy organization were personally involved in the acquisition and distribution of cocaine," Skinner said.

He said the investigation showed that the people who made the allegations were "misinformed."

Hefner and several associates were targets of a 15-month federal grand jury investigation centering on alleged drug trafficking at various Playboy clubs, resorts and hotels, including the mansions in Chicago and Los Angeles.

During the investigation, Hefner had charged the government with conducting a "politically inspired witch hunt."

Several current and former employees of Playboy Enterprises were subpoenaed to testify before the grand jury after Hefner's former executive secretary, her boyfriend and another acquaintance were convicted in October 1974, of conspiring to distribute cocaine.

The secretary, Bobbie Arnstein, received a 15-year provisional jail sentence but died of a drug overdose almost a year ago in what was believed to be suicide. Her boyfriend, Ronald Scharf, received a six-year sentence and another friend, George Lawson, was sentenced to 10 years in prison.

In an emotional news conference after Miss Arnstein's death, Hefner accused the government of pressuring her into killing herself.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey said Monday that a county grand jury has dropped its investigation into the death of Adrienne Pollack, a former Playboy bunny who died of a drug overdose in September 1973.

"The investigation was discontinued because the grand jury found 'no evidence of prosecutable criminal conduct,'" the spokesman said.

4-Day Yule Toll Lowest In 30 Years

By The Associated Press

Fewer Americans died in traffic accidents during the 1975 Christmas holiday period than in any four-day Yule observance in the last 30 years.

The death toll tabulated by The Associated Press was 397 for the period from 6 p.m. Wednesday to midnight Sunday.

The National Safety Council estimated that 440 to 500 persons would die on highways during the holiday.

Last year, a one-day observance of Christmas, there were 204 deaths tabulated. In 1973, a total of 520 persons died during a four-day Christmas period.

Mexico Foreign Minister Quits

Mexico City (AP) — President Luis Echeverria accepted the resignation of Foreign Minister Emilio O. Rabasa, who said he planned to enter "active politics."

Named to replace Rabasa was Alfonso Garcia Robles, Mexico's ambassador to the United Nations since 1971.

United Telephone Increase Refused

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

A unanimous Nebraska Public Service Commission Monday denied a $310,000 rate increase sought by United Telephone Co. of the West.

United, which serves the Scottsbluff-Gering region, had asked for a 90-cent monthly increase in one-party residential rates and a $2.10 monthly hike in business rates.

Dave Baker, United's vice president and general manager, said he wanted to review the decision before commenting on it.

Audit Urged

Commissioner Robert Marland of Lincoln, who made the motion to deny the application, also asked that commission accountants inspect United's books as soon as possible for the firm's latest rate of return on investment.

Marland's motion authorized United to earn 9.5% on its investment; in 1974, United earned 10.52%.

Originally, Marland sought a $193,000 reduction in rates to bring United's actual earnings in line with its authorized rate of return.

Commission Chairman Eric Rasmussen of Fairmont opposed that, saying the commission could not use an application for a rate increase to reduce rates.

Marland said that is the only way the firm could realize a 9.5% rate of return.

Re-Investment Favored

"I personally don't feel the rates should be lowered. The money should be invested to provide better service," Marland said.

Rasmussen said the commission staff and legal counsel agreed that rates could not be reduced without a separate action.

On another matter, however, the commission failed to reach a consensus. The subject was the Blair Telephone Co.'s reapportionment for a rate increase; earlier this year, the commission denied the firm any increase, citing service problems and certain questionable uses of funds.

Problems Solved

The Blair firm said the service problems are being remedied and asked for its rate to be increased so it can receive a low-cost government loan to further upgrade service.

Commissioner Duane Gay of Columbus suggested Monday Blair be ordered to eliminate mileage charges and upgrade phone service for 200 farm families in exchange for a 9% rate of return and an increase in one-party residential rates from $5.50 to $9.75 a month.

Rasmussen objected, saying he could not support allowing the firm a 9% rate of return when its debt is virtually all low-cost government loans.

"We haven't allowed 9% on any Rural Electrification Administration loans," Rasmussen said.

Gay countered that Rasmussen was blocking service improvements. The three other commissioners suggested Gay draw up a proposed order to reflect his opinion.

Counterspy to Print

More names of intelligence agents working in Africa and Europe will be published by a once-obscure magazine which identified a CIA agent who was slain in Athens last week, a spokesman said Monday.

Doug Porter, a staff member of the Washington quarterly Counterspy, said the February issue would publish the names of CIA agents now in Angola, France and Sweden.

Counterspy and its parent organization, Fifth Estate, over the past three years has published names of CIA agents and in its most recent issue identified Richard S. Welch as a CIA station chief in Lima, Peru.

Welch was transferred this year under cover to Greece as station chief and an Athens newspaper printed his name and address. Last week, three gunmen shot him outside his home.

Counterspy, which describes itself as an adversary publication composed of former Vietnam veterans and some former intelligence agents, disclaimed responsibility for "fingering" Welch.

A spokesman said the organization did not know Welch moved to Greece "and if anyone is to blame it is the CIA that sent him there to spy and perhaps even to intervene in the affairs of the Greek government."

The blood of Mr. Welch is on the hands of the CIA and not on the pages of Counterspy."

Staff member Porter said Fifth Estate had 3,000 members who supported Counterspy which had an annual budget of $20,000 and an unpaid staff.

Porter said Fifth Estate officials included former CIA agent Philip Agee, who went to England to publish a book giving names and details of CIA operations, and Victor Marchetti, also formerly with the CIA, who collaborated on another book on the agency.

President Ford said in Vail, Colo., on Christmas Eve he felt the disclosure of Welch's name was "partly responsible" for his assassination, and a spokesman said Ford feared other CIA agents would be endangered by disclosure.

Profit Taking Hits Market; Rally Halted

NEW YORK (AP) — Profit takers brought the rally of the past three sessions to a halt in the stock market Monday, and prices finished mixed.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, up 21.18 points over the last three trading days and 41.01 since Dec. 5, slipped back 3.15 to 856.66.

Advancing issues nosed out declines, however, 744 to 708 among the 1,908 traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Big Board volume was a moderately active 17.07 million shares, up from 10.02 million on Friday when many investors took an extra day off for the Christmas holiday.

Activity was strongest at the outset, as the Dow picked up about 3 points in an effort to extend its recent gains.

But profit taking began to appear at midmorning, and the pace of trading slowed thereafter.

The halt in the market's advance coincided with a pause by the bond market, which prices also were mixed Monday following some recent impressive gains.

Wall Streeters have said recently that the bond market was leading the stock market upward because it seemed to be expressing optimism over the interest rate and inflation outlook, and because its advance was driving down yields on interest-bearing securities which compete with stocks for investors' funds.

Technical analysts also noted that the market reversed itself with the Dow at around 860 — a level from which it has turned back several times since late summer.

Some investors meanwhile appeared to have stepped back to await the government's report on its index of leading economic indicators for November.

It had been scheduled for Monday, but was put off a day, as was the weekly measure of retail sales.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index gave up .12 to 90.13 and the NYSE's composite index was down .06 at 47.54.

Pan American World Airways topped the Big Board's most-active list, unchanged at 5 1/2.

A 500,000-share block changed hands at 5 1/2.

Copper Range fell 1 1/2 to 18. The company announced plans to lay off 72 per cent of the work force at its copper facility in White Pine, Mich., as part of a cost-cutting campaign.

Colonial Penn Group dropped 2 1/4 to 28 1/4. Consumers Union criticized some Colonial Penn health insurance plans for the elderly.

Utah International was up 1/4 at 46 1/4 and General Electric slipped 3/4 to 45 1/4. Neither issue showed any pronounced reaction to work from the Justice Department that its antitrust division would look into the two companies' planned merger.

New Process Co., which declared an increased dividend, was up 1/2 at 13 on the American Stock Exchange.

The Amex market value index moved up .05 to 82.63.

In the over-the-counter market, the NASDAQ composite index lost .19 to 76.94.

Euell Gibbons Dies; Naturalist

SUNBURY, Pa. (AP) — Euell Gibbons author and naturalist who became nationally famous through his television appearances and commercials promoting natural foods, died Monday night. He was 64.

A Sunbury Community Hospital spokesman said Gibbons was dead on arrival Monday evening. Northumberland County Coroner Ernest Kortien said death was apparently due to natural causes. He said two men brought Gibbons to the hospital from a church.

Gibbons was hospitalized with bronchitis in January, but it was not known if the condition was related to his death.

Gibbons who lived on an 11-acre farm in Beavertown Pa., first became known with publication of books such as "Stalking the Wild Asparagus," "Stalking the Blue-Eyed Scorpion" and "Stalking the Heathful Herbs." His books reportedly were selling a combined total of 100,000 copies a year.

Gibbons' ideas on the health value of natural foods caught the fancy of youthful admirers and others across the country, and he was soon making appearances on nationally televised talk shows.

His TV commercials for breakfast foods caused some embarrassment when the Federal Trade Commission ruled last July that General Foods could not suggest that certain parts of plants are suitable for human consumption. The FTC case involved General Foods ads in which Gibbons talked about eating foods grown in the wild.

In 1974 Gibbons developed an ulcer. He said at the time it wasn't from anything he ate but from aspirins he took for arthritis.

Born in Texas Gibbons became interested in foraging for food from his mother. At age five he had already concocted a wild candy bar of hickory nuts and hickories.

When he was 12, his father left the family to look for work and Gibbons and his brothers ran out of food. The wild food he was able to gather was enough to live on for three weeks.

He also learned at an early age how to fish for rabbits with a piece of barbed wire stuck into a prairie dog hole.

In his youth, Gibbons worked as a cowboy, fisherman, carpenter, surveyor and teacher. Between jobs, he was a hobo and beachcomber.

Gibbons was a self-taught man, having completed only 5½ years of formal schooling.

He attended the University of Hawaii at the age of 36 and won the literary prize for the best creative writing in the Hawaiian Islands in 1948.

In one of his books, "Beachcomber's Handbook," Gibbons discussed his attempts to become a beachcomber and his unsuccessful attempt to remain one.

He went to Hawaii with the idea of making the visit a temporary stopover on his way farther south but met a beachcomber named Jim who persuaded him to stay in a tarpaper shack under a kama tree.

For three years, Gibbons lived the life of a beachcomber chopping hearts from coconut palms and eating exotic foods such as candied papaya flowers.

It was in Hawaii that he met the former Freda Fyer of Philadelphia whom he later married. He was formerly a Southern Baptist, but he and his wife became Quakers after their marriage.

Once asked if he were an organic gardener, Gibbons replied, "No I am a Quaker."

Gibbons and his wife spent most of the year on their farm 175 miles from Philadelphia. During the summer, he taught a survival course at Outward Bound, an outdoor living school for teen-agers.

He also was seen on occasion in the coffee houses of Greenwich Village in New York City listening to amateur poets and talking with the young people who gathered there.

In keeping with his image as a nature lover, Gibbons was a staunch conservationist and strongly objected to the indiscriminate use of chemical sprays.

Nature is not to be conquered, he once said. "You have to adapt, not nature."

The greatest fallacy in Western Man's thinking is that man is or should be engaged in the conquest of nature.

Many of them drove 20 hours or more without stopping in their rush to get to Florida, and they're a menace on the road when they can't find a place to stop, he said.

Police in Dade and Broward Counties reported they had received no complaints of illegally parked campers.

Both the Long Key and Flamingo camping grounds in Everglades National Park have been filled to their 325-car capacity since Christmas night, a park spokesman said.

"We expect to go on this way through next weekend," he said. "Campers, unless they get here by 9 a.m., should not expect to get in."

The flood of tourists is not limited to South Florida.

An overflow of vacationers forced temporary admission limits at two of the state's largest attractions, Walt Disney World near Orlando and Busch Gardens in Tampa. And officials at Cypress Gardens said that attraction set an attendance record Monday.

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Six terrorists who seized the headquarters of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in Vienna, killing three persons and holding scores hostage, have been granted political asylum in Algeria, officials said here Monday.

The sources said the six raiders, including one woman, were granted political asylum because the Algerian government readily does it for "Palestinian revolutionaries or people acting for the same cause." The terrorists released their hostages including oil ministers, last week.

The informants said the terrorists could stay freely in Algeria and would not be extradited to any other country. They added that the Algerian government had as yet received no formal extradition request. They also noted that there was no formal treaty on extradition between Algeria and Austria.

The sources indicated that the identities of the raiders would not be immediately made public. They said that a country which grants asylum to any person is not obliged to reveal his identity.

Karajan Draws Ticket Requests

Vienna Austria (UPI) — The Vienna state opera has received numerous advance ticket bookings from foreign tourists for the spring 1977 season when Herbert Von Karajan will return as conductor the Austrian tourist office said.

Most of the bookings came from persons who did not care what operas will be on the program as long as they are conducted by Karajan, it said.

Euell Gibbons Dies; Naturalist

SUNBURY, Pa. (AP) — Euell Gibbons, author and naturalist who became nationally famous through his television appearances and commercials promoting natural foods, died Monday night. He was 64.

A Sunbury Community Hospital spokesman said Gibbons was dead on arrival Monday evening. Northumberland County Coroner Ernest Kortzen said death was apparently due to natural causes. He said two men brought Gibbons to the hospital from a church.

Gibbons was hospitalized with bronchitis in January, but it was not known if the condition was related to his death.

Gibbons, who lived on an 11-acre farm in Beavertown, Pa., first became known with publication of books such as "Stalking the Wild Asparagus," "Stalking the Blue-Eyed Scallop," and "Stalking the Heathful Herbs." His books reportedly were selling a combined total of 100,000 copies a year.

Gibbons' ideas on the health value of natural foods caught the fancy of youthful admirers and others across the country, and he was soon making appearances on nationally televised talk shows.

His TV commercials for breakfast foods caused some embarrassment when the Federal Trade Commission ruled last July that General Foods could not suggest that certain parts of plants are suitable for human consumption. The FTC case involved General Foods ads in which Gibbons talked about eating foods grown in the wild.

In 1974, Gibbons developed an ulcer. He said at the time it wasn't from anything he ate but from aspirins he took for arthritis.

Born in Texas, Gibbons became interested in foraging for food from his mother. At age five, he had already concocted a "wild" candy bar of hickory nuts and hackberries.

When he was 12, his father left the family to look for work, and Gibbons and his brothers ran out of food. The wild food he was able to gather was enough to live on for three weeks.

He also learned at an early age how to fish for rabbits with a piece of barbed wire stuck into a prairie dog hole.

In his youth, Gibbons worked as a cowboy, fisherman, carpenter, surveyor and teacher. Between jobs, he was a hobo and beachcomber.

Gibbons was a self-taught man, having completed only 5½ years of formal schooling.

He attended the University of Hawaii at the age of 36 and won the literary prize for the best creative writing in the Hawaiian Islands in 1948.

In one of his books, "Beachcomber's Handbook," Gibbons discussed his attempts to become a beachcomber and his unsuccessful attempt to remain one.

He went to Hawaii with the idea of making the visit a temporary stopover on his way farther south but met a beachcomber named Jim who persuaded him to stay in a tarpaper shack under a kamani tree.

For three years, Gibbons lived the life of a beachcomber, chopping hearts from coconut palms and eating exotic foods such as candied papaya flowers.

It was in Hawaii that he met the former Freda Fyer of Philadelphia, whom he later married. He was formerly a Southern Baptist, but he and his wife became Quakers after their marriage.

Once asked if he were an organic gardener, Gibbons replied, "No, I am a Quaker."

Gibbons and his wife spent most of the year on their farm 175 miles from Philadelphia. During the summer, he taught a survival course at Outward Bound, an outdoor living school for teen-agers.

He also was seen on occasion in the coffee houses of Greenwich Village in New York City, listening to amateur poets and talking with the young people who gathered there.

In keeping with his image as a nature lover, Gibbons was a staunch conservationist and strongly objected to the indiscriminate use of chemical sprays.

"Nature is not to be conquered," he once said. "You have to adapt, not nature."

"The greatest fallacy in Western Man's thinking is that man is or should be engaged in the conquest of nature."

Northerners Jam Southern Florida

MIAMI (AP) — Northerners on vacation are parking their camping vehicles on highway shoulders, school parking lots and at shopping centers because South Florida campsites are filled to the brim, officials said Monday.

"We have no other place to go," said a Minnesota driver who asked to remain unidentified. "You can't go down to the Keys because all you see coming in the other direction are campers who couldn't find a campsite. It's ridiculous."

Operators of trailer parks and campsites from Palm Beach to Key West said they expect to turn away for at least another week the vacationers who didn't make reservations.

"We're not complaining," said Carol Ruff, operator of a campground in Florida City, south of here. "But we're getting tired. We're overflow full down here. It's busier than last year."

Donald Langley, manager of a private trailer park in Fort Lauderdale, said the stream of cars and trailers on Florida roadways with no place to park has created a hazard.

"Many of them drove 20 hours or more without stopping in their rush to get to Florida, and they're a menace on the road when they can't find a place to stop," he said.

Police in Dade and Broward Counties reported they had received no complaints of illegally parked campers.

Both the Long Key and Key Flamingo camping grounds in Everglades National Park have been filled to their 325-car capacity since Christmas night, a park spokesman said.

"We expect to go on this way through next weekend," he said. "Campers, unless they get here by 9 a.m., should not expect to get in."

The flood of tourists is not limited to South Florida.

An overflow of vacationers forced temporary admission limits at two of the state's largest attractions, Walt Disney World near Orlando and Busch Gardens in Tampa. And officials at Cypress Gardens said that attraction set an attendance record Monday.

Algeria Grants Asylum To Six OPEC Terrorists

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Six terrorists who seized the headquarters of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in Vienna, killing three persons and holding scores hostage, have been granted political asylum in Algeria, official sources said here Monday.

The sources said the six raiders, including one woman, were granted political asylum because the Algerian government readily does it for "Palestinian revolutionaries or people acting for the same cause." The terrorists released their hostages, including oil ministers, last week.

The informants said the terrorists could stay freely in Algeria and would not be extradited to any other country. They added that the Algerian government had as yet received no formal extradition request. They also noted that there was no formal treaty on extradition between Algeria and Austria.

The sources indicated that the identities of the raiders would not be immediately made public. They said that a country which grants asylum to any person is not obliged to reveal his identity.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Tuesday, December 30, 1975

Worth repeating. Definition. Astrology is that scientific art which treats the synchronicity between planetary positions and mundane affairs, including human character and potential.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Check various factors in any proposition that includes travel or long-range commitment. Be self-assertive. Ask questions. Get to heart of matters. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. One who is purported to be "spirited" may merely be "strange". You'll understand!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Highlight ability to use material in most constructive, versatile manner. Money situation is not stable. Know it and plan accordingly. Means plan ahead for greater financial potential. Gemini, Sagittarius persons could provide hints.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Lie low; play waiting game. Collect data. Study Taurus message. Accent is on partnership, involvement. If single, talk of marriage is featured. Married or single, you could be asked to sign a "special document".

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be analytical. Refuse to accept superficial explanations. Exercise your right to know. You ask pertinent questions, you'll obtain answers. Key is to present facts in orderly fashion, to let others know you expect legitimate replies to queries.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Make necessary domestic adjustments. Accent is on warmth, affection - and love. You may have some explaining to do - but if honest, if you get to heart of matters, you gain in all areas. Be strong within!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be positive concerning values. Get property appraised. Get full value of efforts, products. One who "sermonizes" is envious, perhaps deceitful. Refine techniques - strive for overall improvement. One who sings blues lacks talent. Respond accordingly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Highlight responsibility, willingness to invest in your own capabilities. Travel could be on agenda. Double check directions, reservations. Messages could be garbled. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure in picture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Avoid tendency to be extravagant. Get rid of losing proposition. Get ready for future instead of crawling back to past. If you attempt to buy loyalty you could be in for rude awakening. A secret is revealed. If discreet, you could realize money gain.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Cycle is such that you could be rewarded for doing what you enjoy - your natural abilities are recognized. Make new start, welcome fresh contacts, concepts. Show interest in pioneering projects. Aries, Leo and Aquarius could figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Friend confides "plan." It might be riddled with false premises. Know it, be grateful but tactful. Insert humor into delicate situation. Be versatile, optimistic while pointing out flaws. Gemini, Sagittarius could be in picture.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be specific, direct. Insist on quality, frankness. Stick to issues. Insist that others do the same. Expand horizons. Element of timing could be on your side. Know it, proceed with confidence. One who "pulls strings" takes a long to go.

IF DEC. 30 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have sense of humor - you travel, express and have knack of winning "popularity" contests. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles in your life. June will be your most significant month or 1976. What you started this past year will bear fruit. You could be in a more comfortable home and financial situation - sooner than you think. Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 2. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
